B.C. To Run Welfare For Region

By BARBARA McLINTOCK
Colonist Legislative Staff

All welfare and children's services in the Capital Region will be taken over by the provincial government, probably by August, Rehabilitation Minister Norman Levi announced Friday.

Levi

Levi told the Legislature that the move would be a pilot project, and would likely be extended to other areas of the province later, eventually embracing the whole of B.C.

The immediate takeover in the Capital Region would be by the province, he said, but ultimately the services would be turned over to the Capital Regional Board to administer.

The changeover to regional control might take place within two to three years, he suggested, as soon as the region has the staff and expertise to provide high-quality services.

The main agencies to be taken into provincial control are the Victoria city social services department, the Saanich municipal social services department, and the Family and Children's Service, a private, non-profit agency serving most of the region now.

Welfare services for the rest of the Capital Region are already mainly run by the provincial government, through offices in Esquimalt, Langford, Sidney and Sooke.

Levi said the Capital Region had been chosen for the pilot project because it had, on its own, undertaken a study which recommended integration of welfare and children's services, either under the region, the province, or some newly-created body.

The study he referred to was one commissioned by the regional board and undertaken by the Community Council of Greater Victoria in late 1970 and early 1971. Although it originally was received with considerable enthusiasm in the Victoria area, no action was taken on it because of strong opposition from the Family and Chil-

Banker's Daughter Abducted

FREEPORT (AP) — Bahamian police said Friday two men have kidnapped a Canadian banker's four-year-old daughter and demanded a $250,000 ransom.

Andrea Spencer was taken Thursday night by two masked men armed with pistols who burst into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Spencer and demanded the money, police said.

Authorities said the Spencer child was dressed in pyjamas and had just finished her afternoon nap when the armed men seized her.

On Jan. 14, 1972, an armed man forced his way into the Spencer home in Lucaya and ordered Spencer to get him $300,000 from the bank's vault.

The gunman took off in Spencer's automobile, taking his wife, Joan, with him. She managed to escape from the moving car.

Strachan Sees Lower Rates

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislative Staff

British Columbia's proposed new government-run auto insurance plan scheduled to begin operation March 1, 1974, will be universal, non-profit and a monopoly.

It will function under the umbrella of a new crown corporation, to be known as the Insurance Corporation of British Columbia, which will enable the government to also enter the general insurance field but in this case on a profit-making basis in competition with private firms.

Highways Minister Robert Strachan introduced legislation setting up the ICBC and an accompanying Automobile Insurance Act, establishing the car insurance plan, in the house Friday. The ICBC Act gives the government the power to take over any insurance company or enter joint operations in the field.

Strachan

Private Firms

The government plan virtually wipes out the $135 million car insurance business in this province although Strachan later told a news conference licenced corporations and agents have until Oct. 1 to make application to act as agents for the B.C. scheme.

Asked whether private car insurance firms would receive any compensation from the government, Strachan replied: "We will meet with them and discuss the transition period. But they (the industry) have been telling us for years and years they've been losing money. We're doing them a favor. They should be paying us."

The legislation contains no premium rates under the proposed new plan. Strachan told reporters "massive computerization" is required to come up with a rate structure because it will be tied to licence plate sales and individual driving records as well as to age, risk category and geographic location.

Few Months

But the minister predicted rates in all driver categories will be "generally" lower when the plan comes into effect next year and promised to give some "ballpark figures" to the Legislature when the bills are being considered in committee later in the current session.

The cabinet will determine each specific class of general insurance which the crown corporation will undertake.

Insurers Shaken, Alarmed

Expressions of alarm and shock came from both the insurance industry and political opponents in the wake of Friday's announcement that the Barrett government intends to set up Canada's biggest insurance corporation.

Legislation to put the government into the car insurance field had been expected, but the move into general insurance as well came as a surprise and aroused some of the strongest criticism.

Ian Rendle, manager of Gardner Agencies Ltd., in Victoria, summed up the feelings of many in the industry when he said he had several views of the proposed legislation, and all of them were of alarm.

Rendle said he was disturbed by the part of the legislation which gives the cabinet the power to order organizations which receives provincial grants or loans—such as school boards, hospital boards, municipalities and universities among others — to

Tracing Tragedy from Poppy to Profit

The Heroin Trail

Deaths from heroin addiction are only a part of the tragedy that heroin has brought to our society. They include addicts whose lives have been wrecked. They include those who, triggered by heroin usage, have experimented disastrously with other dangerous drugs. They include those who have been assaulted or robbed by addicts who stole to pay for their habits. And, finally, the victims also include the parents and relatives of the addicts. To all this must be added other costs, necessary ones, for treatment, prevention and enforcement — costs that might be applied to other social problems if heroin did not exist.

It was with these facts in mind that Newsday, a New York-area newspaper, decided more than a year ago to make a major commitment to telling the full story of heroin, the drug that seemed to be the most merciless of all in the punishment it inflicted upon its users.

The full story, Newsday decided, should focus not only on the victims of heroin but on those who had profited by it. It is generally known that millions of dollars are made each year by heroin profiteers, but little information has been made public about specific individuals, systems or methods that were operating for financial gain to bring heroin to its ultimate victims.

"Covering" heroin meant going to its source, principally the poppy fields of Turkey. It meant following its route to North America, principally through Europe and especially in France, where the morphine base derived from the opium poppy was converted into heroin in illegal laboratories.

The first three months for the three-man Newsday team were spent in Turkey. They lived in a rented house on the outskirts of Istanbul. Their investigations led them to the poppy fileds of Anatolia and the cafes of Sofia, Bulgaria, as well as to the nightclubs and restaurants of Istanbul.

The trio was followed on several occasions; they were threatened their phones were tapped; they found themselves on guard and suspicious of apparently normal actions by people who they didn't know.

In September, after driving through Europe along the route taken by narcotics smugglers, they set up a second base, in the seaside town of Lavandou, on the south coast of France near Marseilles.

In the meantime, a second team began forming to report out the heroin story in the United States, concentrating on New York and Washington, but also travelling as far as Mexico, Miami and Montreal in search of the American connection.

The overseas group returned Dec. 15.

The story on "The Heroin Trail" will be told as a continuous narrative, starting in the Sunday Colonist. It is organized along the route that the drug takes from the poppy fileds of Afyon province in Turkey to the arms of the addict in American cities. Each day's story will focus on a specific aspect of the business of heroin.

B.C. To Run Welfare

Levi said legislation would be introduced at this session to allow the province to assume control over the welfare administration of the two municipalities involved.

A second bill will allow the government to take control of all three children's aid societies in the province — the Victoria Family and Children's service and two societies operating in the Vancouver area. However, said Levi, at the moment that bill will probably be used only in relation to the Victoria agency.

Mayors of the municipalities involved and the board and staff of Family and Children's Service had been told of the proposed takeover beforehand and were involved in planning for it, the minister said.

Both mayors, Peter Pollen of Victoria and Hugh Curtis of Saanich, had seemed to be in favor of the takeover, he said, and he hoped that the Family and Children's Service was not so opposed as it had been at the time of the original report in 1971.

Much of the service's opposition had been centred around questions of staff, he said, and he hoped their fears on this score had been relieved to some extent.

No staff would be laid off because of the takeover, he said. However, he admitted outside the house that the number of staff in the agency would be gradually reduced over the next year or two by attrition — not replacing those employees who leave the agency.

It had also neen arranged that the salaries of supervisory personnel would not be cut even if they were now higher than those of staff in similar positions in government departments. However, the salaries would be frozen until government salaries caught up with them.

The only exception to this policy would be in the case of a few very top-level management people, Levi said.

Their salaries would remain the same for a year, but after that they would probably be cut, indeed, their positions would likely be phased out because otherwise the integrated operation would be a top-heavy bureaucracy, taken in a large number of management personnel from the various agencies.

Levi told the Legislature that the community council study had shown in the Victoria area "a morass of services — overlapping, unintegrated and outdated." He said this was typical throughout the province.

The municipalities involved would save some money, he said, in the costs for administration of welfare. For example, Victoria, in 1971, the last year for which figures are available , spent $122,000 in the administration of welfare. With an integrated service, Levi thinks the cost of administration for Victoria in 1973-74 will be $36,000 but even this will be paid by the province.

He emphasized that the municipalities will still have to pay their 15 per cent of welfare payment costs in their jurisdictions.

However, the great advantage in the integrated system would not be in the saving of money, but rather in the improvement of services to clients.

For example, offices could be set up without being tied to existing municiapl boundaries; they could be set up wherever they were needed most.

It was also better to have the crown directly responsible for the children who were in care, rather than having a private agency responsible.

He told the Legislature he expected the Capital Region project to become a model for the whole province for the integration of services. Later the whole Island would be divided into two zones for such services, he thought—the Capital Region being one and the rest of the Island the other.

NDP Leaps Into Insurance Fields

Strachan said these could include fire, property, casualty, marine, and even life insurance.

He predicted the general insurance branch of the corporation would probably be in operation within a few months and certainly by the end of this year.

The legislation also gives the cabinet discretionary power to order organizations which receive provincial grants or loans — such as school boards, hospital boards, municipalities and universities among others — to buy their general insurance from the government.

Strachan defended this action, however, quoting from a letter written by the B.C. School Trustees Association asking the government to go into the fire insurance business because school boards object to 48 per cent of the premiums they paid to private firms going into commission, profits and administration.

No Compensation

On the question of compensation, Strachan said: "I'd like to point out that twice before in our history legislation has been introduced by government for compulsory coverage embracing a whole field with no compansation being paid.

"At one time both the Workmen's Compensation and Unemployment Insurance fields were the preserve of private insurance companies. But (following the government takeover) no compensation was asked for, expected or paid because these are social requirements."

At another point the minister said: "When a government, for the public good, compels citizens to buy a certain type of insurance it has an obligation to eliminate profit-making from what is virtually a tax and a further obligation to make it as economical as possible for the captive market."

Largest Firm

Strachan said when the ICBC is established it will be the largest general insurance undertaking in Canadian history. The first year business volume is expected to exceed $175 million mostly from the insuring of automobiles and drivers in the province.

(The present leader in this field, the Royal Insurance Group, wrote roughly $150 million worth of business across Canada last year, and even without life insurance the B.C. crown corporation will rival London Life, the top-ranked life underwriter in the country which reached a premium level of $175 million in 1972 after 99 years of growth.)

The new crown corporation will have up to five directors appointed for three-year terms, including a minister—most likely Strachan himself as the primary architect of the insurance scheme—to be designated by cabinet as president and chairman of the board.

It will probably employ between 900 and 1,200 people as well as an unknown number of the estimated 2,000 private insurance agents now operating in the car insurance field. But Strachan said agents who decide to sell government car insurance will get less than their present 12½ per cent commission. No figure has been fixed.

Strachan gave this general description of how the auto insurance scheme will work:

Every driver as well as every vehicle owner will have to buy the plan's basic insurance coverage in order to obtain a B.C. licence from the motor vehicle branch. The government will also handle all supplementary insurance coverage sold on a voluntary basis.

The premiums, to be set by regulation later, won't be subsidized by any tax dollars and will be based on actuarial principles. No profits will be allowed.

There will be no reduction in present benefits; there may be some increases.

Accident victims will still be free to sue for damages over and above the level of no-fault benefits. And all victims of uninsured or hit-run drivers will be covered by the ICBC plan.

The minister noted that all drivers, whether or not they own a car, will pay an insurance premium as will all vehicle owners. Drivers who accumulate penalty points for traffic violations will pay correspondly higher premiums so that bad drivers, whether car owners or not, won't be subsidized by good drivers.

The ICBC is also empowered to "build and operate one or more" auto repair shops. Strachan said this was needed "so we can determine from our own experience what it costs to repair automobiles and so help us in negotiations with private repair shops."

Auto Repair

The minister said at present the government doesn't plan to go into auto repair "on any great scale" but added under further questioning it was "a distinct possibility" in the future that cheap public repair shops would compete with private firms.

Any income from such repairshops, salvage, and investment of premium reserves will be plowed back into the plan to benefit all of those who are insured, Strachan said.

Independent agents, private insurance companies, ICBC offices, government agents and motor vehicle branch offices throughout the province will be able to sell both the basic automobile insurance and the annual provincial licence decals. However, at present metal licence plates will only be sold at motor vehicle branch outlets.

Options Open

"The vast majority of car owners," Strachan said, "will have the option of continuing to go to their present private agent and buying the compulsory insurance from him and the MVB decal; or buying from a government agency either directly or by mail."

He added the substantially increased number of outlets should reduce lineups of last minute buyers of licence plates among the province's 1.3 million drivers for the estimated 1 million vehicles on B.C. roads.

Asked why B.C. had opted for a monopoly in the car insurance field when NDP governments in Saskatchewan and Manitoba permit private firms to sell supplementary coverage, Strachan replied: "Despite an Insurance Act which now provides instantaneous insurance, we have private insurance companies still fighting among themselves over which one pays this $100 and which that $200."

Waiting Periods

"As a result, we still have people waiting long periods for settlement of their claims. Under B.C.'s more comprehensive legislation we are proposing to have only one company so that will put and end to this continual arguing between insurers over who accepts the responsibility."

The legislation states the cabinet may order an initial advance of $5 million to the ICBC as "seed money" but Strachan said more than this amount, which would be in the form of a repayable loan at going interest rates, may be required to get the scheme into full operation.

The ICBC, operating as a general insurance agency, will use independent agents and adjusters. It will pay provincial taxes and any surpluses it earns, above a certain minimum, can be appropriated into the consolidated revenue of the province.

Its reserves can be invested in traditional securities or provincial projects designated by the cabinet such as schools and hospitals.

The legislation also clearly states that the auto insurance plan funds, including investment income from reserves and other projects, shall be used only to meet claims, capital and operating costs once reserves to cover liabilities have been set aside.

SHEEP PROTECTION ACT

All owners of dogs are reminded that the following sections of the Sheep Protection Act apply in all unorganized areas of the province.

5. It is lawful for any person to kill any dog in the act of pursuing and worrying or destroying any sheep, goat, poultry or domestic rabbit elsewhere than on the land belonging to the owner of the dog. R.S. 1948, c. 303, s. 4; 1965, c. 47, s. 3.

12. No dog shall be allowed at large at any time between sunset and sunrise, unless accompanied by or within reasonable call of the owner or some person having charge or care of the dog. R.S. 1948, c. 303, s. 12; 1967, c. 46, s. 7.

Britain's Pay Unrest Mounts

LONDON (Reuter) — Train engineers and hospital workers joined a mounting protest over Britain's official pay policies. As a country-wide strike by 47,000 gas workers entered its third day, a big rail union called a one-day strike for Feb. 28 and leaders of 220,000 hospital workers announced industrial action to start March 1.

Stations Warned About Censoring

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Radio-Television Commission cautioned individual radio stations Friday not to implement a reported agreement between the Canadian Association of Braodcasters (C.A.B.) and the Association of Chiefs of Police before consulting with the commission.

In a telegram to Don Hamilton of Vancouver, president of the C.A.B., commission chairman Pierre Juneau said that the Broadcast Act "imposes on each broadcaster the responsibility for his programming."

Juneau's telegram referred to published reports of an agreement between police and private television and radio officials "purportedly giving police greater control over news during crises."

In a return telegram Hamilton told the CRTC "there is no agreement between this association and the Canadian Association of Police chiefs.

"There is in existence a document known as a statement of objectives, principles, and operating guidelines for effective working relationships between the peace agencies of Canada and the media," said Hamilton.

This was intended only as a set of guiding principles or code of ethics.

He said as far as he was concerned the government move was another dilution of the basic rights of people to have a choice of who they do business with.

John Oster, owner of a Victoria insurance agency, said the government's move could easily put 4,000 people employed in the B.C. car insurance industry out of work. This number will include insurance adjusters, clerical staff, claims investigators, and auto insurance underwriters.

"Perhaps the government is willing to take them all on as civil servants," he said.

Oster said this was only the first step against private business the New Democratic government would be taking.

"The insurance industry certainly isn't the only one scheduled for the chopping block."

Outside the Legislature after the government announcement had been made, Garde Gardom (L—Point Grey) said there was no question the government had launched a "100 per cent takeover" of the private car insurance industry in the province. He added there is cause for concern that a similar fate may not await general insurance businesses under the NDP.

The only saving, if any, likely to come from the scheme is the $12 million or so in profit received by private firms from investments of the estimated $135 million in annual premiums prepaid by B.C. drivers, he said.

Dr. Scott Wallace (PC—Oak Bay) said he found the government's legislation "completely dictatorial" because it appears to take away the livelihood of many in the private insurance field without any mention of compensation.

Socred house leader Frank Richter gave an initial comment on the legislation saying it was so far-reaching that he found it "profoundly shocking." Later, however, after the party caucus met briefly Friday evening to discuss the bills a further statement was issued.

Caucus chairman Ed Smith (SC—North Peace) said the monopoly feature in the car insurance scheme was "incredible," the lack of controls over premium investments was "appalling," and provision for the government to cancel agents licences without notice or compensation "vicious in a free society."

His Heavenly Date Would Jam Computer

BLACK DIAMOND, Wash. Rev. John N. MacIntosh received a form letter from his insurance company which said it had a report he had died. The letter was addressed to his estate.

MacIntosh, pastor of the Black Diamond Presbyterian Church, said that since the National Liberty Life Insurance Co. of Valley Forge, Pa., obviously was waiting for an answer, he did the best he could.

"I regret that I shall not be able to inform you, as you request, the date of my departure," he wrote.

He explained that, if the report were true and he were no longer on earth, he would have to supply them with a "heavenly date" which would doubtless "jam your computer." The company has not replied, he said.

U.S. Not Surprised By Oil Restrictions

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada's decision to bring crude oil exports under controls, at a time when the United States is battling recurrent fuel shortages, aroused concern here Friday that it could aggravate American fuel problems.

There was no surprise, however, and no criticism of Ottawa's move.

Canadian diplomatic sources said the state department had been advised in advance of the decision and knowledgeable U.S. officials had known for at least a month that Canada might be building up to fuel shortages of its own.

An official of the interior department said that, with U.S. refineries failing to keep up with "really abnormal demands" for heating oil this winter, "any large cutback in Canadian supplies is going to be very serious."

Darrell M. Trent, acting director of the president's office of emergency preparedness, said a special U.S. government board on fuel supply is evaluating the Canadian move to determine its potential effect, adding that the decision "adds another dimension to an already tight distillate problem."

Both Canadian and American sources said there is little or no likelihood that the oil controls would be viewed here as an attempt by Ottawa to introduce a new element in the larger economic and trade relations between the two countries.

A senior state department official said there is "no basis" for the view, which he termed "simplistic" and one which would not be accepted by those familiar with Canada-U.S. relations.

A Canadian diplomat said there was some concern at the embassy about "wild misinterpretations" of the motives behind Ottawa's decision, but he gave no indication that the Canadians have found any grounds for their concern.

Charles Bray, official state department spokesman, told reporters the U.S. has "known for some time that Canada is at present producing oil at a maximum rate and that Canadian refineries and other groups in Canada have been pressing the Canadian government for assurances that domestic needs will be met."

The U.S. assumes all present commitments by Canada will be met, Bray said, and added: "Obviously the availability of substantial additional amounts of Canadian oil for American markets must be doubtful unless large new discoveries are made in Canada."

News of the controls was treated erratically by the press, despite the attention it has paid lately to fuel problems.

Tradition Overcomes Automation Challenge

PARIS (AP) — The Corsican tradition of stuffing the ballot box has beaten the test of automation, to the dismay of the French government.

The French planned to install automatic voting machines for next month's national election on the Mediterranean island and halt the usual harvest of more votes than there are voters.

Sets of three machines with room for 15 candidates on each were ordered, giving each voter 45 candidates to chose from.

A total of 105 persons filed for office, even though it cost $200 each to file.

Baloot boxes will again be used.

British Troops On 'Red Alert'

BELFAST (UPI) — British troops in Belfast have been placed on "red alert" in fear that large scale violence is about to erupt in the province again, the army said early today.

The alert was called following a sniping attack on a soldier, bomb blasts and still another shooting incident.

"You can almost feel the tension in the air as if the city were waiting for some new downward plunge in the crisis," said a security spokesman.

In Armagh, troops evacuated children from a school while they set off a bomb that had been planted nearby.

The army alert also centered on several car highjackings but gunmen, which the army feared signalled a new spate of car bombings.

"We have set up widespread security check points to trap these vehicles and our main concern now is the purpose for which they may be used," an army spokesman said.

The army said the soldier shot in the Catholic Falls area was "dangerously ill."

Reason Gone Overboard

USE OF THE STRIKE WEAPON, particularly in areas of essential service and public safety, can only be justified for the relief of flagrant injustice, risk or neglect. No such issues appear to be involved in the dispute between the B.C. Coast Pilots Ltd. and the Pacific Pilotage Authority which contracts for the services of this company of highly skilled specialists.

Capt. Alex MacKinnon, president of the pilots' organization, says wages are not a principal issue. That may be so. But the government's pilotage authority maintains the demand is for what will amount to about 30 per cent on salaries which average $30,000 a year.

The pilots want to escape long hours of watch keeping, as many as 20 at a stretch, which, they say with some justification, is too heavy a load to bear without occasionally causing loss of efficiency.

The rather complicated business of tariffs to ship owners is part of the picture. These must be increased if the pilots are to get what they want in wages, better safety provisions and revenue to make their organization self-supporting and no longer in need of government subsidy.

What the public sees, of course, is an attempt by some 80 pilots to win advantage by tying up coast shipping without counting the damage that results.

The withholding of services—the pilots don't like the word strike—has not altogether immobilized shipping. The government has waived regulations requiring pilots aboard all foreign ships entering and operating in coastal waters. With the exception of some areas like Seymour Narrows, Active Pass and Porlier Pass, where tides run dangerously fast, masters are free to take their ships without pilots.

If the pilots may be thought to have been impetuous, there will be some doubt in the public mind that the government's waiver of pilotage requirements is a very sensible rejoinder.

All this is likely to accomplish is a more adamant attitude on the part of the pilots, while accepting a certain amount of risk to shipping, the environment and the public.

It would have been better had the government authority accepted the suggestion that the federal labor department's west coast representative, Don Tysoe, sit down with both sides—even though the pilots are contractors rather than employees.

It is still not too late, surely, to seek such a sensible solution. The government—as represented by the pilotage authority—should be asked once more to negotiate and the pilots should get back to the bridges where they are needed. Reasonable men should be able to reach agreement without exposing the public to risk and inconvenience, to say nothing of unrecoverable costs.

Barrier?

PROPOSED NEW BUILDING regulations for four-storey frame apartment blocks in Victoria are said to be designed to put an end to overdone blacktopping. If approved by city council, they will require landscaping of at least 45 per cent of the entire site, instead of the present 30 per cent, thus cutting down the allowable parking space. And they will also demand that at least 50 per cent of the mandatory parking places be underground.

These seem to be laudable provisions if the garden aspect of the city's beauty is to be preserved. But the council must also consider that by adopting the new regulations it could be hastening the end of four-story frame apartment construction — and whether that would be good or bad.

A developer recently told the Vancouver Real Estate Board that although condominium apartments still were economically viable, anyone continuing in the construction of rental apartments "must be out of his mind." He gave the new federal tax structure as the reason. Add to that, since then, the provincial government decision to allow apartment assessments for taxation to rise to 50 per cent of market value while private homes stay generally around 35 per cent. The investment money for underground parking may be difficult to find.

Spreading the Word

THROUGH ALL THE YEARS of its opposition to a "Hansard" report of the debates of the British Columbia legislature, the chief objection of the Social Credit government as cited by W. A. C. Bennett was that the report would foster absenteeism. As the then-premier saw it, the members would have less reason to listen in the chamber if they could later read, instead.

But the assembly has its Hansard, and it appears that Mr. Bennett was wrong. Even in the generally unexciting — in fact, often boring — addresses of the reply to the Throne Speech and the budget debate, attendance of the MLAs has been no poorer, and possibly better, than at previous sessions.

Now a similar objection has been expressed to in-the-buildings broadcasting of the proceedings of the assembly. The recently tabled report of Speaker Gordon Dowding on legislative procedures and practices suggested that loudspeakers should be installed in each caucus room, the press offices, the party leaders' offices and those of the Speaker and clerk. But Social Credit MLA Ed Smith contends that this would encourage members to stay out of the chamber.

The experience with Hansard indicates otherwise, and the expectation might be that the loudspeakers would often bring absent members back to their seats.

'Fat-Catism Gone Mad'

Ask yourself this quesiton, suggests New Democratic MP William Knight of Assiniboia . . . where on earth could you work where one of every three members of the staff makes more than $18,000?

Easy question . . . in the Industry, Trade and Commerce Department, and, he suspects, almost certainly in just about any other federal government agency.

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonist Ottawa Bureau

Then ask yourself this question, goes on Bill Knight . . . where your job at the $18,000-plus executive level is so secure, regardless of performance or non-performance, that you can appeal clear up to the Supreme Court of Canada against dismissal or even demotion?

Right again . . . in Industry, Trade and Commerce and likely anywhere else across the vast federal empire now embracing, according to Statistics Canada, 417,487 subjects.

Talking to Bill Knight and looking at the salary statistics he is extracting from the government, finally you've got to ask yourself the question . . . what am I doing working where I am when perhaps I, too, could be deep into the federal clover?

When confronted with the salary scales, the security, the fringe benefits and one of the country's best pension plans, there seems no sensible answer . . . except maybe that you never realized before just how good it can be working for the government.

The situation seems to fascinate Mr. Knight, for he has been pursuing it since he first took out after Statistics Canda last August and discovered that in three years there had been a 153 per cent increase in the number of employees topping $18,000.

He said at the time that the astonishing expansion in Stats Can's executive suite was the result of the government "hiring more statisticians to pile up more statistics" to give the appearance of being busy at problem solving.

He saw Stats Can's 153 per cent increase in its $18,000-and-over salaries as "one of the worst examples of Parkinson's Law running wild."

But that was before he started asking questions about Industry, Trade and Commerce salaries.

He asked just two simple questions . . . how many full time employees are there, and how many of them earn more than $18,000?

He has received the answers from Industry, Trade and Commerce Minister Alistair Gillespie and finds the situation, as he puts it, "a sheer public outrage."

Mr. Gillespie informed him that 2,372 people work for the department.

And 698—or about one in three—do better than $18,000.

Of these, 605 top $20,000.

The big bulges in the department's executive payroll are between $21,000 and $22,000, with 169 in that bracket and with another 112 at the $26,000 to $27,000 level.

Pondering that near-700 executive total, Bill Knight wonders who, in the staff of 2,372, apart from the customary quota of secretaries, clerks, stenographers and messengers, is left to do what.

He calls it "Fat-Catism gone mad."

So he's going after the federal establishment agency by agency on the basis, as he puts it, that "a question a day keeps the empire-builders at bay."

He hopes.

Stress on Health For the Executive

By FRANK LOWE

If what I have been reading lately is anywhere near accurate, it would seem that the biggest business problem today revolves around the executive's health.

The articles I read, unlike those of some years ago, no longer give hints as to how the executive can become more efficient.

They are all aimed at telling him how to become more healthy.

It could be that very shortly the average executive day will go something like this:

6 a.m. — Up and out to jog for seven miles.

7 a.m. — Home, shower, shave, etc.

7.45 a.m. — Breakfast. A bowl of hot water with a spoon of wheat germ.

8 a.m. — Take vitamins A, C and E. Check pockets to make sure tranquilizers are there. Remember that Today Is The First Day Of The Rest Of Your Life.

8:15 a.m. — Leave for office. Don't forget to drive defensively.

8:55 — Arrive at office. Check air pollution level and throw secretary's cigarettes in waste basket.

9-to-9:15 a.m.—Attend staff motivation meeting. Remember to breathe deeply.

10:30 a.m. — Carrot juice break.

11 a.m. — Staff weigh-in. Vice president Saunders found to be two pounds overweight — some discussion about him being a secret cookie eater. V.P. Saunders promises to jog an extra mile each morning until he gets rid of those two pounds.

11:30 a.m. — Consultation with company astrologer.

12 noon-to-1 p.m. — Daily health spa visit. Whirlpool bath. Stationary jogging. Push-ups.

1:15 p.m. — Lunch. Granola and prune juice.

1:45 p.m. — Return to office.

3 p.m. — Fire office boy caught smoking in washroom.

3:15 p.m. — Yoga exercises.

3:30 p.m. — Meet in president's office. Discuss why, with such healthy executives, the company is so sick.

4 p.m. — Unanimously agreed that everybody should try harder.

4:05 p.m. — Stretch out on couch after taking tranquilizer. Can't let decision-making get to you.

4:30 p.m. — Leave for golf club to join client.

5:15 p.m. — Refuse to buy client a gin and tonic. Advise him to try carrot juice instead.

6:30 p.m. — Tell client that the reason you beat him so handily is that you are in shape and he isn't. Take 30 minutes of your time to outline your keep-fit program.

7 p.m. — Explain to fellow club members that what happened really wasn't a fight. Client is merely a quick-tempered type and it wasn't a blow actually. More like a tap.

7:30 p.m. — Home at last. Tell wife about what it is like in the rat race. Sigh. Read newspaper.

8 p.m. — Dinner. Compliment wife on meal. Tell her it is not every woman who has the imagination to take a pound of spinach and make it look like meat loaf.

9 p.m. — Prepare to go for walk. Check air pollution rate. If high, breathe shallowly. If low, breathe deeply.

9:15 p.m. — Tell Neighbor Brown he's getting a bit paunchy.

9:30 p.m. — Tell Neighbor Smith what he is doing to his lungs by continuing to smoke.

10:15 p.m. — Home to tell wife, neighbors are getting old and bad-tempered.

11 p.m. — Bed. Remember to lie with the body pointing north and south. Need a good sleep. Tomorrow is another tough day.

Great Is the Bitterness

Egypt's University Violence

By IRENE BEESON from Cairo

Egypt's universities reopened earlier this month, one month after a wave of sit-in strikes and clashes between students and the police closed them down.

The universities opened a week later than planned to enable the People's Assembly to discuss a fact-finding committee's report on student unrest, which has been endemic since the end of 1971, and which has twice burst into violence.

The findings of the committee, which was set up at President Ansar Sadat's request, agree with the official view that the student unrest, demonstrations, strikes and riots are the work of a subversive minority. The troubles are blamed on "some members of professional syndicates seeking to promote their own interests and who incited the students by false rumors."

"Foreign and suspect elements" are also blamed for "seeking to represent the student incidents as if these were the expression of Egyptian public opinion." The "great freedom of activity on campus" is also listed by the committee as a contributing factor to student unrest.

One thing is certain. The findings of the committee do not represent majority opinion, any more than the official view of the troubles. Since December 30, when the first batch of students and supporters was arrested, the regime has faced strong public criticism and opposition to its method of dealing with the student problem.

A new phenomenon was introduced into the ferment on January 4, when mothers of students under arrest marched to Cairo University, where they shouted abuse at the regime and police, and demanded the release of their sons.

On the eve of the Muslim Feast of the Sacrifice, on January 13, a group of about 50 women had a set-to with the police in Cairo's Ezbekiah Gardens.

The women had assembled calmly at the Lawyers' Syndicate to demand the release of students. The students had been protesting against the government's home and foreign policies and demanding armed action to liberate Israeli-occupied Sinai. The Mukharbarat (secret police) prevented them from entering the syndicate and ordered them to disperse. They reassembled at Ezbekiah and, whipping out banners and placards from under coats and shawls, they shouted: "Our sons are in prison for Egypt;" "You are sacrificing our children for the Feast."

They fought like wild cats with the security force sent to disband them. Most were hauled off for questioning, but released after some hours. Security men also came to grips with local people and passers-by at Ain Shams University, when they tried to evict students who had been sitting-in for 10 days. The security men gave up when the students threatened to burn down the faculty buildings. When they withdrew they were attacked with stones by infuriated Cairenes demanding "freedom for our children" and "freedom for Egypt."

Cairenes are angered by the harsh treatment the youngsters are getting in jail. According to legal sources there were, late last month, about 200 students and "other elements" — writers, poets, lawyers, journalists — in detention. They were in solitary confinement and had not been allowed visits from their parents or lawyers.

About 60 students were released in the last few days, according to unconfirmed reports. But others have been arrested, including an Egyptian journalist working for an East European news agency, who was picked up at Cairo airport and charged with trying to smuggle out student manifestoes and texts, and recordings of poems and political songs by detained authors.

Parents of students under arrest are incensed by charges that their children are acting under outside influences. "It is outrageous that the regime insults and belittles our boys," the father of two detained students protested. "My sons and their fellow students are sincere patriots, loyal to Egypt and desperately anxious to help."

The father of a detained boy recalled that when he was young he demonstrated and rioted against the British. "We were chased, beaten, imprisoned by the British forces of occupation. My son and his fellow students are continuing the struggle. . . ."

A mother protested: "The men who are slandering our sons are the men who lost Sinai in 1967. They are responsible for the mess we are in."

It is significant that this spirit and reaction in favor of the students has spread to conservative circles which were, on the whole, previously critical of the students.

"The regime has succeeded only in antagonizing everybody by attacking the student problem in this harsh, senseless way," said a government official, whose son has been arrested twice in the space of a year. "If the students try to shout their opinions in the streets it is because they want to be heard, but are deprived of the normal democratic channels of parliament and press. . . ."

Legal sources doubt that President Sadat will maintain his decision to try and convict students found "guilty." Public opinion would react angrily to any such convictions, and protests from all quarters might get out of hand, they argue.

A petition signed by Egypt's three top writers — Neguib Mahfouz, Tewfiq el Hakim and Thawart Abaza — supporting the students' demands and asking for the release of all people under arrest, is one of many sent to President Sadat. According to unconfirmed reports, Muhammad Hassaein Heykal, chief editor of the influential Al Ahram, has also petitioned Sadat.

It is likely that there will be face-saving trials of some of the non-students now in detention charged with "inciting" and, according to a statement by the attorney-general, "being in contact with student circles with a view to manoeuvring them in a certain direction."

Some dissidents, including lawyers, journalists, doctors and writers, have suffered political punishment. The country's only political party, the Arab Socialist Union, this week published a list of 64 people who have been expelled from "active membership."

The Mad Trapper, known as Albert Johnson, was shot dead by the RCMP 41 years ago today — in 1932 — after a two-month manhunt. Reported by Indians for interfering with their traps, he shot at police when they visited his cabin at Rat River, N.W.T. After a siege he escaped, in 45-below weather, to the Yukon on foot, killing an RCMP constable en route. He was tracked on foot and by air and he wounded a soldier before being shot.

Free Rides

From The Spectator, Hamilton

Ottawa, so tight-fisted with basic pensions, is considering subsidized travel for old people, so pensioners can visit their home provinces or countries.

Compared with some of the Opportunities for Youth projects, it's a grand idea.

But it's symptomatic of the federal government's zany sense of values. The government has over-taxed people to get more money than it really needs.

Instead of cutting taxes and/or raising old age pensions, both of which would create jobs by putting money into circulation by those who earned it, Ottawa too often fritters away the fruits of Canadians' labors to bribe idle youth and keep willing workers out of jobs.

It's politic for the government to toss the occasional crumb to old people after youth has been gorged. Thus the pittance for New Horizons to make Opportunities for Youth more palatable; thus a proposal to subsidize old people's sentimental journeys to offset the trans-Canada free rides for youth.

Rather than travel subsidies, we suspect most old folk would prefer a higher pension.

The young people truly worthy of the government's attention are those who would rather achieve through their own efforts than be bribed to stay idle — and quiet.

And those who earn the money that government spends in its merry social adventures would rather spend it themselves on real needs instead of watching Ottawa spend so much of it foolishly.

PERKINS by John Miles

Business Tax Cut

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian business community looks to next Monday's federal budget with a hopeful but cautious eye.

The biggest hope of business and industry is that the government will confirm measures announced in the May, 1972, budget but never passed by Parliament.

That budget promised corporation tax cuts and a fast write-off for tax purposes for purchases of equipment to be used in manufacturing and processing goods in Canada.

These measures were hailed with pleasure by business spokesmen at the time. But nine months later they are still waiting for these measures to be confirmed.

The Canadian Manufacturers' Association says it looks for an expansionary budget. It notes speculation of increases on pensions and personal income tax cuts.

Viet Pea Wants F

SAIGON (UPI) — The four-party joint military commission called today for a real end to the fighting that has persisted in South Vietnam despite the Paris peace settlement last month.

The commission, composed of U.S., Viet Cong and North and South Vietnamese military officers, urged all commanders to issue orders to troops to stop the fighting and adhere "strictly" to the ceasefire agreement.

It specifically reaffirmed the ceasefire agreement's ban on armed flights. The South Vietnamese command said last week it was still flying 100 to 200 air strikes a day against communist positions it said were set up after the Jan. 29 ceasefire agreement was signed in Paris.

"The appeal reinforces the over-all agreement," said commission sources. "It shows all four parties are concerned about the violations. If this thing is going to work, it's going to need the co-

Salmo

VANCOUVER (CP) — the Pacific salmon industry is one of the most economically wasteful fishing industries in the world, says a United Nations' fisheries expert.

The expert, J. A. Gulland, said in an interview Thursday that the present harvest of Pacific salmon could probably be taken with no more than a quarter of the present costs. He emphasized he was referring to economic and not social costs.

"There is often a great difference between the amount that is actually spent on catching fish and the amount

Liberals Committed to Increasing Pensions

OTTAWA (CP) — The cost of living hangs over Finance Minister John Turner as he puts the finishing touches on his budget speech this weekend.

The government has pledged, in the words of Prime Minister Trudeau, that there will be "some relief" in the speech Turner presents in the Commons Monday.

Statistics Canada's consumer price index marched steadily upward through 1972. In January, latest month for which figures are available, it jumped almost one per cent over December with increases in costs for food and housing, the two biggest items in the consumer dollar.

Several avenues are open to Turner for providing the promised relief and the government has committed itself in at least one—bigger pensions for the elderly. Tax reductions also appear a distinct probability.

The budget, single most important exercise the federal government performs, will be complicated this time by the minority position of the Liberal government in the Commons and the need to hold New Democratic Party support that so far has kept it in office.

It is also complicated by the fact that legislation to carry out some steps proposed in Turner's last budget May 8 still has not been handled by Parliament. It was left hanging because of last summer's recess, the September election call by the Liberals and the fact that, after the Oct. 30 election, the Commons returned to work only early in January.

The May budget included corporate tax reductions designed to reduce unemployment by spurring plant expansion and creating more jobs. The measures raised the NDP's hackles.

New Democratic Leader David Lewis hinged virtually his entire election campaign on the theme of "corporate welfare bums" who, because of government policies, he said, are not paying a fair share of taxes.

Both the NDP and the Conservatives pressed during the campaign for personal income tax cuts to put more money in consumer pockets and spur the economy. They also pressed for higher old age pensions.

The government has promised that increases in the old age pension will be substantial. The present basic pension available to everyone at age 65 is $82.88 a month. There are supplementary benefits to the needy up to a maximum $150 a month.

A hint on the size of the increase was dropped last month by Daniel J. MacDonald, veterans affairs minister. He said he expected veterans pensions to be increased by about the same amount as old age pensions and mentioned 20 per cent.

Something in that area would put the basic pension at about 100 a month.

Turner's May budget let a three-per-cent temporary personal income tax reduction expire as of last Dec. 31. But the government has not started collecting at the higher rate for those whose wages or salaries are subject to payroll deduction for income tax.

It is expected that continuation of the three-per-cent reduction is the least the government can do in this respect and still retain NDP support.

But since the government moved early this year to set up a special Commons committee to investigate rising food prices and the committee is to have an interim report in by next month, it seems unlikely that, if some controls are included, they will be aimed at this specific area.

Business Hopeful Tax Cuts Pass

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian business community looks to next Monday's federal budget with a hopeful but cautious eye.

The biggest hope of business and industry is that the government will confirm measures announced in the May, 1972, budget but never passed by Parliament.

That budget promised corporation tax cuts and a fast write-off for tax purposes for purchases of equipment to be used in manufacturing and processing goods in Canada.

These measures were hailed with pleasure by business spokesmen at the time. But nine months later they are still waiting for these measures to be confirmed.

The Canadian Manufacturers' Association says it looks for an expansionary budget. It notes speculation of increases on pensions and personal income tax cuts.

"Political considerations apart, the justification for an expansionary budget of this kind is that it would help unemployment by stimulating consumer spending, and that federal revenues are looking very good indeed at the end of this first year under the new tax system.

"All this is valid enough . . . but there are two all-important provisos and they are as vital to the interests of the country as a whole as they are to manufacturing industry."

These two provisions, the association said, were the corporate tax reduction and fast write-off provisions of the May budget.

"Economic necessity and moral obligation alike require that Parliament give effect to these proposals without further delay. They are the minimum required to keep our manufacturing industries competitive — with all that means for jobs."

The manufacturers group and the Canadian Chamber of Commerce agreed on one other suggestion — that budget measures must not be accompanied by higher spending.

IF GESTURE of Finance Minister John Turner is any indication, Canadians may want to hold on to their wallets — or their hearts — when he brings down his budget Monday.

Diefenbaker Sparks Outburst

'Go Now,' Trudeau Invited

Diefenbaker . . . pertinent quiz

OTTAWA (CP) — As only he can, former prime minister John Diefenbaker Friday brought the Commons to the brink of bedlam briefly with a few well-honed questions about a possible election.

It was all fairly light-hearted — at least the part that could be heard through the laughter, the shouting and the desk-pounding.

Simply put, Diefenbaker wanted to know what Prime Minister Trudeau would do in the event the government is defeated on the budget itself, to be presented Monday night, or any of the resolutions resulting from it.

Trudeau and his ministers were spreading their views around the country, but Parliament was being kept in the dark, he said.

Carefully, Trudeau explained there were two possibilities open in the event of a defeat. First, he could go to the governor-general and resign.

That's as far as he got before the Conservative benches erupted in cries of "go now," accompanied by desk-pounding.

Trudeau said none of this applause came from the Tory front benches.

The other alternative would be to ask for the dissolution of Paliament.

In a reference to Diefenbaker, Stanley Knowles (NDP — Winnipeg North Centre) shouted: "He knows what he did . . . ."

What brought on the election exchange was an earlier question from Diefenbaker as to whether the government has done anything about his suggestion that the proposed new redistribution of ridings by provinces be postponed or altered.

Under the proposed redistribution, several provinces, including Saskatchewan, will lose a member, and Diefenbaker has argued that no province should lose seats.

Trudeau said Liberal House Leader Allan MacEachen has talked with House leaders of the other parties about the best way to approach this, and one of these men was "not as forthcoming as we hoped." He hoped that particular House leader would read today's remarks in Hansard and perhaps help speed the process.

Viet Peace Commission Wants Fight-End Now

SAIGON (UPI) — The four-party joint military commission called today for a real end to the fighting that has persisted in South Vietnam despite the Paris peace settlement last month.

The commission, composed of U.S., Viet Cong and North and South Vietnamese military officers, urged all commanders to issue orders to troops to stop the fighting and adhere "strictly" to the ceasefire agreement.

It specifically reaffirmed the ceasefire agreement's ban on armed flights. The South Vietnamese command said last week it was still flying 100 to 200 air strikes a day against communist positions it said were set up after the Jan. 29 ceasefire agreement was signed in Paris.

"The appeal reinforces the over-all agreement," said commission sources. "It shows all four parties are concerned about the violations. If this thing is going to work, it's going to need the cooperation of all four parties."

The commission statement repeated exactly the original ceasefire agreement ban on armed patrols, aircraft strikes and any other kind of attack, combat operation, terrorism, reprisals or any other acts that endanger life and property.

Agreement on issuing the appeal was reached Friday by the commission's deputy chiefs after four days of discussion and it was ratified by the four chiefs today.

"This appeal will be widely spread to all units and fighters," the North Vietnamese delegation said.

In the meantime, the level of "truce" fighting stepped up. The Saigon command listed 165 communist ceasefire violations in the 24 hours ending at 6 a.m. today, up 14 from Friday.

Military sources said Friday night South Vietnam will continue to release communist prisoners of war despite its threat to halt PoW exchange unless 320 government soldiers were freed by the Viet Cong in the central highlands.

Bicycle Built for Two, One of Them Rembrandt

LONDON (AP) — A man stole a Rembrandt oil painting reported worth nearly half-a-million dollars Thursday and made his getaway on a bicycle.

Police said they recovered the painting undamaged soon afterward and were questioning a suspect.

The theft was from the Dulwich College art gallery in the suburbs of south London, where the world's biggest recorded art robbery took place seven years ago.

Officials of the art gallery said the Rembrandt, a portrait called Jacov de Gheyn III, was placed in a large plastic shopping bag by the thief before he fled.

The gallery was robbed in 1967 of eight paintings worth about $7 million. All the paintings, including three Rembrandts and three Rubens, were recovered by Scotland Yard.

Salmon Industry 'Wasteful'

VANCOUVER (CP) — the Pacific salmon industry is one of the most economically wasteful fishing industries in the world, says a United Nations' fisheries expert.

The expert, J. A. Gulland, said in an interview Thursday that the present harvest of Pacific salmon could probably be taken with no more than a quarter of the present costs. He emphasized he was referring to economic and not social costs.

"There is often a great difference between the amount that is actually spent on catching fish and the amount that need be spent," said Gulland, chief of the fisheries statistics and economic data branch of the food and agriculture organization of the UN.

"The Pacific salmon fishery represents an extreme example of what is actually spent compared with what need be spent.

"If you allowed your fishermen to operate fish traps at the mouth of rivers you could almost get the fish to swim into the cans — but who should own the cans, that's the question?"

He added that it is no real hardships to B.C. to catch salmon at four times the necessary cost because the government believes it is good for many fishermen to be employed.

"But if you were a poor country you could not afford to spend money catching fish like that when you could do many other things with the money."

Gulland was enlarging on comments he made in a paper presented to the technical conference on fishery management and development sponsored by the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization.

He and colleague M. A. Robinson, both based with the FAO in Rome, were co-authors of the paper.

"I'm not criticizing B.C.'s fishery management. I am just giving it as an illustration of how big the economic wastage can be," said Gulland.

Gulland said in the paper that attempts by governments to limit fishing to conserve stocks have usually resulted in reducing the efficiency of the individual fishing unit.

Canadian Play 'Bitter, Funny, Brutal'

TORONTO (CP) — Award-winning playwright David Freeman can relax and start planning a trip to Europe where he intends to start work on his third play.

The 28-year-old Freeman, cerebral palsy victim, has another hit in Battering Ram, his comedy now playing to enthusiastic audiences at Toronto's Taragon Theatre.

Critic Robert Martin of The Glove and Mail described the play about a love triangle involving a hospital volunteer, her daughter and a paraplegic confined to a wheelchair, as "often funny, sometimes brutal, always compelling."

"All three members of the cast create strong and utterly believable characters," wrote Martin, adding:

"... It is a bitter comedy that Freeman has written. Everyone gets what he wants but no one is satisfied."

Actor Frank Moore plays Virgil, the paraplegic, Patricia Hamilton "is the comic star of the evening" as Irene the volunteer, and Trudy Young is Nora, her daughter.

Freeman's first play, Creeps, also a hit, won him the Chalmers award for best Canadian play of 1972 and $5,000.

It was about four cerebral palsy victims in a sheltered workshop who sit in a washroom discussing the futility of their lives.

Freeman, whose movements are awkward and speech slurred because of cerebral palsy, spent his first 17 years in a Toronto school for the handicapped.

Then he was in a sheltered workshop for six months where he says he "sanded blocks and put nuts and bolts into boxes."

He left, wrote freelance articles for newspapers and magazines, then enrolled in 1966 at McMaster University in Hamilton where he earned a bachelor of arts degree in political science.

Freeman says most people at first think he's drunk and he constantly encounters discrimination because of his condition.

But he travels extensively and plans to spend several months in Europe, vacationing and working on the first draft of his new play.

"It's my first non-handicapped play and I think it's better than Creeps and Battering Ram put together."

Acid Commentator

Shaw Milder Today

By ERITH SMITH
Colonist Reporter

George Bernard Shaw was unquestionably one of the most brilliant of British playwrights, and one of the most acid commentators on his own times.

Shaw was also very knowing on the subject of human nature, and this, as well as his other qualities, is clearly evident in his play Mrs. Warren's Profession, latest in Bastion Theatre's mainstage offerings, which opened Friday at the McPherson Playhouse.

That Shaw dared to speak out of turn is indicated by the fact that this play, written in 1894, was for a time refused a licence by the Lord Chamberlain; a necessary step before any show is staged in England.

Today, of course, both topic and situations are casually mild. At that time they were shocking. Still, they existed, as did their "circumstances," and Shaw was brash enough to bring them into the open (although not in plain English, of course).

The term delicately avoided in the title was "madam" — and of course no one of respectability then could possibly have any remotest connection with such a person. It was clear, however, that many people of respectability could profit financially by investing in the business of illrepute.

Take Mrs. Warren, add a daughter brought up in schools and totally unaware of her mother's occupation, a would-be suitor lacking in any prospects whose father, a bumbling minister, was an old acquaintance of Mrs. Warren, and a Victorian man-about-town of mellow years with an eye on the daughter — all these are the elements of the plot.

It would be hard to imagine a better Mrs. Warren than Margery Bridgeman. Her performance gave reality to the role, with just enough of a rough edge.

Bridgeman
. . . rough edge

There can be no complaint about the other actors; Milo Ringham as the independent daughter; Jim McQueen as Frank, the would-be suitor; Don McManus as the crass man-about-town; Peter Mannering as the befuddled minister, or Robert Graham as Mr. Praed, the friend to all (although he lost some of his lines into the wings.)

Edwin Stephenson blended his cast and the play into an entertaining whole, and David Dague housed it in attractive sets.

If there is a complaint it involves the dated language of the era. I grew "ever so" tired of some repeated phrases.

School Spending in Balance Today

Fourteen polling stations will be open to voters today who wish to cast ballots in the $1,664,900 Greater Victoria schoolboard referendum.

All registered property owners are eligible to vote, but they must cast their ballots in the municipality in which their names appear on the voters' lists. Polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Esquimalt — Highrock junior high, 637 Head.

Rural area — View Royal elementary, 218 Helmcken.

The referendum money will be spent on projects in nine schools, mostly involving fire and laboratory safety, anti-burglary and vandalism alarm system.

Sixty per cent of the ballots cast must be in favor for the referendum to pass.

Navy Beards Fuzzy

The beard situation in the Canadian Forces is still in the fuzzy stage, a forces spokesman at Esquimalt said Friday.

He said a defence headquarters directive from Ottawa withdrew a commanding officers' right to grant permission for men to grow beards.

But the directive gave no instructions on how to cope with men already wearing beards.

One bearded sailor said that wearing of beards has been a traditional right of seamen dating back to before razors were ever heard of.

Design Panel Meets

Chairman of the group is Victoria architect John Di Castri who designed the $2 million Crystal Pool.

The panel will review development proposals with a view to their esthetic appearance and environmental impact on the area in which they are to be built.

Proposals to be assessed by the panel are all those costing more than $100,000.

Members of the panel are Sylvia Graham, a design expert; A. E. Bowers, construction company design advisor; David Hambleton, architect; J. W. G. Ker, engineer and Geoffrey Greenhalgh, the city's planning director.

The panel which was established by mayor and council will report to the Victoria Advisory Planning Commission and to city council.

Esquimalt Youths Plead Guilty

Two Esquimalt youths pleaded guilty in Victoria juvenile court this week to the armed robbery of four Americans at a campsite at Thetis Lake, Dec. 30.

Two youths armed with a .303 rifle and a .410 shotgun robbed the Americans of $20, police said.

Police said three youths were arrested by Esquimalt police for stealing mail boxes in Esquimalt and two were later charged with the Colwood area robbery.

The youths — one aged 15 and one 16 — appeared in court Tuesday and Wednesday and will be sentenced later.

Vandalism

Intruders who broke into Edward Milne high school in Sooke overnight Thursday smashed two TV sets and a radio that were part of the school video system and stole about $10 cash, Sooke RCMP said Friday.

Co-op Plans

By HUBERT BEYER
Colonist Reporter

Following the disclosure Friday of plans for Victoria's first co-operative housing development, there were indications that a second, similar project may soon be launched.

The second project, according to city hall sources, involves nearly-completed negotiations with the provincial government for the sale of a five-acre parcel of city-owned land at Ryan, near Hillside and Shelbourne.

The price of the land, to be purchased by the province as part of the land bank scheme, is estimated at $230,000. There would be room on the site for about 80 housing units.

Proposed provincial increases in the grants to municipalities won't cover one sixth of the possible increas in the Saanich mill rate, Hug Curtis told the Legislatur Friday.

Curtis, who is both mayo of Saanich and the Conserva tive MLA for the area, sai the "miserable and measly $ increase in the per capit grant to municipalties" wa possbly the biggest slingl failure of the New Democrati budget brought down Feb. 9.

In Saanich in 1973, he sai the amount of money raise by one mill on the tax rat will be about $154,000. To rais the provisional budget's $7. million will require an in crease of about six mills ove last year's rate.

Curtis armitted that th was only a provisional budg "and will be subjected to r ductions, but for the mome the taxpayers . . . are facin a six mill increase in or year.

Environmental Check Click-Clicks in Sky

By DON GAIN
Colonist Reporter

A team is being assembled in Victoria to interpret photos — taken by a U.S. satellite and high-flying Canadian aircraft — which eventually will be used as a continuing check on what we are doing to our environment.

Some of the pictures are being taken from a height of 600 miles by the Earth Resources Technology Satelite (ERTS), launched last May by the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The others are being taken by two DC3s, a CF-100 and a Flacon fan jet, all based in Ottawa, from a height of 30,000 to 40,000 feet.

The satellite photographs almost every part of Canada every 18 days (it took 35 years to photograph it once using standard aerial photographic techniques).

These pictures, with those from the specially equipped Canadian government aircraft, will provide a history of what's going on with our forests, wild life, agriculture, hydrology and ecology.

He said in an interview this week that an advertisement in Victoria and Vancouver newspapers has drawn about 50 replies from "a broad range of people, some with very little education and no experience to some highly qualified people."

He said the project, which is being financed under the winter works program, will require six fulltime people or a larger number of part-time people

The advertisement calls for applicants with some training or experience in aerial photo interpretation or in an environment-related field such as forestry, hydrology, ecology, agriculture or wild life studies.

Their work will be the interpretation of the "imagery" from the satellite and the aircraft for presentation to possible users in B.C.

The program is under the aegis of the Canada Centre for Remote Sensing which was formed in Ottawa in 1970 as part of the department of energy, mines and resources.

Its purpose is to make available to Canadian users the new technology in remote sensing.

It will now be possible to see changes in ice cover in bodies of water, to detect and follow diseases in agriculture and forest crops, to chart pollutants in lakes and oceans, including oil slicks and phosphates in detergents and to record changes in permafrost distribution and wildlife habits as a result of mineral exploration.

In the satellite photographs, said Gower, "features larger than 200 feet can be distinguished and scientists are using the pictures for crop and forest inventories and large-scale pollution and water circulation studies."

Possible uses for these pictures in B.C. will be investigated by the team he now is setting up.

The team will get started as soon as possible, Gower said.

He said one use the photographs can be put to is to provide information for the Canada land inventory office.

Pilot Dispute Leads to Tieup

Tied-up pilot boats were typical of provincial waterfront scenes Friday as marine pilots withdrew their services after failing to reach contract settlement with Pacific Pilotage Authority. Some 50 ships in coastal waters were in hands of masters but little shipping moved Friday. Meanwhile, dock foremen in Vancouver and Nanaimo took off work Friday to attend stop-work meeting over denial of retroactive pay but dock activities remained normal and foremen returned to work for night shift.

Levi Weighs Private Charities Takeover

Province To Feel Out Fund-Raising Climate

By BARBARA McLINTOCK
Colonist Legislative Staff

All United Appeals in B.C. have been asked to send to Rehabilitation Minister Norman Levi a list of the organizations and programs they now fund which they would like the government to help in financing.

In a speech to the Legislature Friday, Levi said he felt the government should be picking up the tab for more community services, and wanted to know which ones the appeals themselves felt should be government-financed.

The appeals, which include Community Chests and United Community Services groups throughout B.C., should be grateful for the move, he said, because each year they're having more and more trouble meeting their goals.

It was New Democratic Pary policy that "services to people" should be paid for out of general provincial revenue, not by land taxes nor by voluntary donations, he said, and he intended to move in that direction.

However, he emphasized that he still thought there would be a place for volunteer donations in the community services field.

It was his own idea, he said, that the role for United Appeals would be the funding of innovative and experimental community programs, and he thought the agencies should be moving more and more into this field.

"Once a service is proved out, then the government must assume a role," he told the house.

But he added outside the house the government will move relatively slowly into the whole field of picking up projects now funded by United Appeals.

The general total donations by volunteers in the province now are about $10.5 million a year, and he didn't anticipate the government taking over $1 million of this within the next year.

He said he expected to have the co-operation of all B.C.'s United Appeals in the changeover of some services.

If he didn't get it, then "sooner or later" the appeals would be coming to the government to ask them to pick up the deficits left when the fund-raising campaigns had fallen far shot of their goals, and the matter could be dealt with then.

While the transition period was going on, Levi suggested, the appeals could do far better by funding only about half the number of agencies they are now supplying money to.

For example, if an appeal now finances 35 agencies but is having to cut back its grants to all of them because of lack of money, it would be better to decide which are the best 18 or 20 of the agencies and give them enough money to provide a really high-quality service.

Outside the house later, Levi said that agencies or programs whose funding was taken over by the government would have to be higly accountable for that money.

Each year the services the agencies provided would be reviewed, and ones that didn't come up to standard would be dropped. There would be no sense of "well, they got money from us last year. So they'll automatically get it again next year," he said.

He also mentioned his department was considering introducing a three-year budgeting system for some agencies. This would enable them to engage in better long-term planning without always having to worry about where the money was coming from, he said.

During his speech to the house, Levi also said his department was working to consolidate all of the legislation in the province dealing with children, and was studying daycare in the province and making it available to more people.

Second Project Indicated

Co-op Housing Group Plans Summer Start

By HUBERT BEYER
Colonist Reporter

Following the disclosure Friday of plans for Victoria's first co-operative housing development, there were indications that a second, similar project may soon be launched.

The second project, according to city hall sources, involves nearly-completed negotiations with the provincial government for the sale of a five-acre parcel of city-owned land at Ryan, near Hillside and Shelbourne.

The price of the land, to be purchased by the province as part of the land bank scheme, is estimated at $230,000. There would be room on the site for about 80 housing units.

Details of the first co-operative housing venture in Victoria were disclosed by Mrs. Shirley Schmid, president of the Vancouver-based United Housing Foundation, at a press conference in Victoria Friday.

The project of about 70 townhouse units is to be built on a 4.3-acre site at McCaskill in Victoria West. A group of Victoria residents have formed the Pioneer Co-operative Housing Association which hopes to get the development to the construction stage by summer.

The group will be aided and advised by its Vancouver counterpart which has built the De Cosmos Village in Vancouver.

Mrs. Schmid told reporters the Victoria project would consist of units with one to four bedrooms, equipped with all appliances.

The ultimate price of the units, she said, depends on what the prospective buyers want to include in the development. In the case of Vancouver's De Cosmos Village, a three-bedroom unit sold for $17,900. The monthly payment, she said, was $164.

Mrs. Schmid said the co-op concept offers several advantages, financially and otherwise.

A Co-op housing group, she said, can get a preferred interest rate from the Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., 7¼ per cent in Vancouver last year.

But more important, members of the group can determine the details of the entire project. They are involved in the planning, they decide what amenities will be included, Mrs. Schmid said.

Another advantage of the present circumstances, she added, was that the provincial government takes an interest in co-op housing. The Victoria West site has been bought by the province for $350,000. The co-op group will lease it from the government on a long-term basis.

Technically, residents of a co-op housing project don't assume actual ownership of their specific units; each resident owns a share in the whole project, Mrs. Schmid explained.

If a resident wants to sell his unit, the sale price is based not on what the market will bear, but on the original purchase price, plus increased costs of construction since it was built and any improvements the resident may have made.

Mrs. Schmid dispelled fears by Victoria West residents that the project might have detrimental effects on the area.

"We don't just move in and say, that's too bad. We plan the project with a careful view to its impact on the neighborhood," she said.

She had already spoken with school board officials who assured her that the population influx wouldn't present an unsurmountable problem with regard to school facilities.

'Illegal Act' Charges Supported

By NANCY BROWN
Colonist Reporter

Some 1,100 loggers were back on the job Friday in the Port Alberni area, but the owner-operators of equipment who had been the subject of the four-day work-stoppage stayed away from the job.

The IWA members from three divisions of MacMillan Bloedel Ltd, at Cameron, Franklin and Sproat Lake had been accused Thursday in the Legislature of serious transgressions of the law after they had protested against having to work with non-union workers in the woods.

Statements made in the Legislature by Allan Williams, Liberal MLA from West Vancouver-Howe Sound, were backed up Friday by representatives of independent owner-operators and contractors.

A telegram was sent to Premier Barrett requesting government intervention in the dispute by representatives of the Truck Loggers Association, the Western Independent Log Haulers Association and the Upper Island Truck and Equipment Owners Association.

It said that the owner-operators are being denied the right of access to public lands — a right guaranteed under public policy.

The Forestry Act guarantees that holders of Tree Farm Licences may contract out at least 30 per cent of the land they control to small operators.

Earl Foxcroft, president of the Port Alberni local of the IWA said Friday that all union members are back on the job today following agreement Thursday that all operators working in the woods would join the union.

He said the Truck Loggers Association has advised its members to stay off the job and most indepentent operators have obeyed.

Social Services' Takeover

Director Queries 'Monopoly' Step

By JUDY CREIGHTON
Colonist Reporter

"A bigger social service monopoly will not necessarily make services more or less effective."

This was the immediate reaction by Gordon Wright, executive director of Victoria's Family and Children's Service to Rehabilitation Minister Norman Levi's announcement Friday that the provincial government would move in and take over all welfare and children's services in the Capital Region on Aug. 1.

Wright was present in the Legislature for Levi's speech. He said later that the government's building of a bigger structure doesn't guarantee anything. "The real question is how you can deliver social services in such a way they are really responsive to the needs of the people who use them."

Last May, the Community Chest of Greater Victoria decided to remove the Family and Children's Service from Chest membership at the end of 1972, thus cutting it off from a further share of United Appeal funds.

The reason given for the move was the belief of the Chest's directors that financing of the agency's services was provided for by statute and that it was no longer appropriate to use voluntary funds for this purpose.

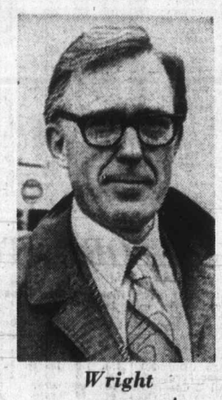
Since leaving the Chest, the service has been financially supported by ratepayers in the Capital Region.

Wright said Friday night that all social services tend to be much more the way administrations and governments wish, than the way the user wants them.

He added that unless some changes are achieved in the responsibilities of the social workers to the people served, "nothing will be gained by this venture on the part of this government."

Questioned about his service's part in the government's plan, Wright said that if the proposed organization was an attractive one, "they (the staff) could stay or if not attractive, leave."

"I don't think anyone is so enamored of big welfare. We've fought to make the Family and Children's Service in Victoria the best."



Wright
. . . no guarantee

Chairman of the Capital Regional Board, Jim Campbell, had this to say:

"I hope they (the government) keep it forever. Regionaligation is better than having municipalities handle social services. Unlike education, such services are not related to boundaries."

Levi told the Legislature the move would be a pilot project and would likely be extended to other areas of the province.

Former board chairman and Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis said Levi's move was "positive."

He streesed there was certainly need for co-ordination several years ago.

"I still think it would have been preferable to put the agencies and social service departments under the Capital Regional Board, but I accept the minister's suggestion this is the way he wants to do it," he said.

Promotion

Commodore Reginald Pickford, currently senior naval officer on Canadian Defence Liaison staff at Washington, D.C., will be promoted to rear admiral and assume command of Maritime Command Pacific late this summer at CFB Esquimalt, the defence department announced Friday. Pickford will replace Rear-Admiral Richard Leir who moves to defence headquarters at Ottawa.

Grant Increases Measly—Curtis

Proposed provincial increases in the grants to municipalities won't cover one-sixth of the possible increase in the Saanich mill rate, Hugh Curtis told the Legislature Friday.

Curtis, who is both mayor of Saanich and the Conservative MLA for the area, said the "miserable and measly $2 increase in the per capita grant to municipalties" was possbly the biggest slingle failure of the New Democratic budget brought down Feb. 9.

In Saanich in 1973, he said, the amount of money raised by one mill on the tax rate will be about $154,000. To raise the provisional budget's $7.5 million will require an increase of about six mills over last year's rate.

Curtis armitted that this was only a provisional budget "and will be subjected to reductions, but for the moment the taxpayers . . . are facing a six mill increase in one year.

The governments' increase of $2 a head will produce increased revenue of only about $132,000 for Saanich's population of 66,000, he said, or less than one mill. So this could still leave taxpayers with an extra five mills to pay on their taxes.

And Curtis noted that such figure included only general municipal taxes and didn't take into consideration any possible mill rate increase from school taxes.

He also said there hadn't been any increase at all in the per capita grant to municipalties from 1970 until this year.

The $15 increase in the homeowner grant, meant to relieve the homeowner of the load of school taxes, could be looked at similarly, he said.

The increase is "just about $2 more than the average annual icrease in the last six years," he said. It had varied from a $10 a year increase to a $20 a year increase during that time.

The increased grants and no other aid to municipalities represent, Curtis suggested, a "total and abysmal failure to do anything more than tell us that the government is aware of the pressures facing local government."

High Court Rules Against B.C.

An Oak Bay osteopath has won a B.C. Supreme Court ruling that a regulation under the B.C. Medical Services Act was invalid because it had affected his practice.

Dr. Robert Stark, 1532 Prospect Place, challenged a regulation which limited the amount of money to be paid each year per patient and family.

The court ruled Thursday that on the evidence, there was a falling off in Stark's practice, which was reasonably attributed by him to the refusal of patients who had reached the limit of their insurance to continue treatment at their own expense.

The court found it a fact that the effect of the regulation was to impede access to the doctor's services and was therefore not conforming to the act.

Oils Take Slide On Export Limit

TORONTO (CP) — A recovery in the final hour of trading Friday enabled prices on the Toronto stock market to recoup early losses and close mixed in active trading despite a sharp drop in oil issues.

The western oil index dropped 7.20 to 273.53, it sharpest drop since Nov. 22, 1971. Analysts atributed the decline to announcement by the federal government that restrictions will be placed on oil exports to the United States starting March 1.

Among declining oil issues were Home Oil B, off 2⅝ to $38, Bow Valley 1⅞ to $44⅞,

More Finance Pages 11, 12

Dome Pete 1⅝ to $43½, Texaco 1½ to $63, Shell 1¼ to $54¼ and Gulf 1¼ to $35¼.

Brinco rose ⅜ to $5⅞ after reporting a substantial profit for its latest fiscal year compared with a loss a year earlier. The company also said it will sell treasury shares to two Japanese firms for $7.7 million.

Pre-Holiday

NEW YORK (AP) — The market skipped ahead after idling in place for most of the session. Trading was at its lightest level of the year on the eve of the Washington's Birthday holiday weekend.

Analysts differed sharply in their views of the late burst. Several agreed it could be attributed at least partly to the covering of short positions which often precedes an extended holiday.

Oil issues showed a broad strength. Standard Oil of California moved up 1⅜ to $80⅛; Stardard Oil Indiana gained 1½ to $87; and among the most actives, Gulf was up ½ to $25⅛, Mobil added 1⅞ to $67¾, and Exxon advanced ¾ to $88¾.

Moderation

MONTREAL (CP) — Advances outnumbered declines in moderate trading. On the Montreal Stock Exchange Andres Wines dropped 2¼ to $46¼, Dome Petroleum 2 to $43½, Rapid Data 1⅝ to $11½ and Texaco Canada 1½ to $63.

Mixed Prices

VANCOUVER — Prices were mixed in moderate trading. EDP Industries rose 2 cents to .42. Monterey A was an active oil, off a penny at .62. Among the mines, Imperial Metal rose 13 cents to $40. Meteor went up 2 cents to .27.

Copter Deal Dead

VANCOUVER (CP) The board of directors of Okanagan Helicopter Ltd. Thursday rejected a takeover bid made by the Resource Service Group Ltd.

Okanagan Helicopters President John Pitts said in a letter to shareholders Resource Service Group Ltd. "Will not succeed in its announced objective of obtaining control of Okanagan."

He said the majority of the directors felt that offer was not in the best interests of shareholders.

Okanagan and Graymont Ltd. of Montreal announced Thursday an issue by way of private placement to Graymont of 150,000 ordinary shares of Okanagan at a price of $14 a share.

It was also announced that the two companies had signed an agreement under which Okanagan agreed to purchase, subject to approval of regulatory authorities, all of the outstanding shares of Lac St. Jean Aviation and Haida Helicopters from Gaymont.

Dollar Regaining Health

LONDON (AP) — The devalued United States dollar enjoyed its best day of the week Friday on world money markets. It strengthened in most key centres.

Government spokesman in several capitals said that the devaluation had steadied markets after weeks of crisis selling. But private bankers were not so sure that sufficient confidence in money values had yet returned.

Some suggested any one of a number of potential sparks could set off another international monetary crisis before long. Currencies with their immediate future in doubt included the Japanese yen, the British pound, the Italian Lira British pound, the Italian lira francs.

With all this uncertainty in the value of paper money, gold remained at record highs on Europe's free markets. On the two major markets, the metal closed at $74 an ounce in London and $73.50 an ounce in Zurich, both records. On Thursday gold closed at $73.62 in London and $73.37 in Zurich.

The continued uncertainty in money markets had several couses, dealers said, including the major reason for the dollar crisis in the first place.

This was the fact that by the end of 1972 the United States was spending $8.5-billion more aboard than it was earning overseas. Devaluation is supposed to erase that deficit, but doubts continue about the likely success of the remedy prescribed.

Further doubts centre on the levels that other currencies will eventually reach in adjusting to the dollar devaluation.

There were rumors on money markets Friday that the Swiss would revalue their franc upward and the Italians would devalue their lira downward in weekend announcements.

The Japanese yen, now floating up against the dollar, closed Friday at 264 yen to the dollar, a revaluation of 16.7 per cent. The Japanese are expected to re-fix their exchange rates in April, somewhere around current levels.

Uncertainty also surrounded the French franc. Market sources said a leftward swing in the French national elections next month could force a franc devaluation.

The British pound, although floating outside fixed exchange rates, already was weakening. Market sources in London blamed this partly on Britain's strike troubles and partly on the returning dollar strength.

Arctic Gets Tugs

VANCOUVER — Seaspan International Ltd. of Vancouver and Federal Commerce and Navigation Co. of Montreal, along with the assistance of Puget Sound Tug and Barge Co. and PAC of Seattle, have formed a transportation consortium for northern development.

Seaspan, which mergedd with Island Tug and Barge two years ago under the combined corporate arms of Dillingham Corp. and Genstar, said the new company will be called Arctic Transportation Ltd.

The new firm will devote its efforts to providing specialized water services in the western Arctic, from Prudhoe Bay in Alaska. Federal Commerce has some specialized ice-breaking tugs for Arctic work.

Head office will be established in Vancouver with branch offices in Calgary and Montreal.

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 33 per cent increase in gas sales revenue was cited by Inland Natural Gas Co. Ltd. as the primary reason for a 13 per cent increase in net profit for the six months ended Dec. 31, 1972, compared with figures for the same period in the previous year.

In its report, the company listed net profit of $1,916,507, or 61 cents a share, for the 1972 period, compared with $1,720,651, or 54 cents a share, for the 1971 period.

Inland had been mentioned last fall as a potential takeover target by the then-new NDP provincial government.

U.S. Domination Sensitive Subject

VANCOUVER (CP) — The president of the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants Friday urged the federal government to keep its cool about United States domination of the Canadian economy.

A. J. Little of Toronto told an institute luncheon that Ottawa would be wise to view unemployment, inflation and the welfare system as higher priorities than foreign ownership.

"In dealing with the question, our politicians must be careful not to make a hasty response to something that may seem very important to the public, but on which they lack basic information," he said.

Little acknowledged that Canada has a higher proportion of its business controlled abroad than any other developed country in the world.

"We must remember that whatever legislation is passed, whatever rules are made, will be squarly directed at our greatest trading partner, the United States.

"By moving quickly, or without due care, we could do great harm to our economy because of the concentration of foreign ownership in U.S. hands," said Little.

Labo

The commission promised by Labor Minister William King to review all existing labor legislation in the province will not be set up after all, King announced Friday.

Instead he has appointed three special advisers to his office who will conduct the review and recommend changes in the labor laws.

King admitted Friday that he "had some problems trying to set up a commission," which was to have included representatives of both management and labor, but he refused to specify what they were.

Over the past two weeks, B.C. Federation of labor president George Johnston had said he wouldn't serve on such a commission and labor representatives had spoken against the commission, mainly on grounds it would be too slow a mechanism for instituting needed changes and might not be effective.

"I'm not prepared to play games any longer," said King, but he wouldn't say what games had been played. "We've taken this route, and the department has command of the situation."

The three advisers appointed by King are Dr. Noel Hall, director of the Institute of Industrial Relations at the University of B.C.; James Matkins, assistant law professor at UBC, and, D. E. McTaggart, a Vancouver lawyer.

However, King emphasized that despite the changed format of the investigating team, labor and management will have ample opportunity to make their views known to the department and to make any representations they wish before the laws are changed.

"In fairness, that's all anyone can really expect, an opportunity to make their views known," King told a news conference.

One way they'll get the opportunity to make their views known is with a series of conferences on industrial and labor relations. The first of these will take place in mid-April at Harrison Hot Springs and about 70 representatives of managements and labor have been invited to attend.

Later conferences are planned, probably one for the north and one for the Kootenays area, King said.

If labor didn't approve of the setup and boycotted the conference and the advisers,

'Oil Firms May Run From NDP'

New Democratic government policies will drive the petroleum industry out of British Columbia within the next four years, a Social Credit MLA charged in the Legislature Friday.

Don Phillips (SC—South Peace River), speaking in the budget debate, said that the increase in petroleum royalties will cause a drop in exploring for oil in the province.

That increase, and also one in the corporation tax from 10 to 12 per cent, were not done out of necessity, but "to appease the waffle group" in the New Democratic Party, said Phillips.

Mining industry may follow the petroleum industry out of the province, Phillips, suggested, noting that this year "for the first time in many years there are no major mines under development in the province."

Phillips also urged the government to take action to reduce the wolf population in the province, saying wolves were destroying game herds of moose and even attacking domestic animals.

Gas Profits $9.5 Million

B.C. Hydro made a profit of $9.5 million on its sales of natural gas in the province during the last reported fiscal year, it was disclosed in the Legislature Friday.

Premier Barrett, filing written answers to questions, said the profit was on $21.3 million worth of natural gas bought by the Crown corporation.

Labor Commission Scrapped

In the Legislature

The commission promised by Labor Minister William King to review all existing labor legislation in the province will not be set up after all, King announced Friday.

Instead he has appointed three special advisers to his office who will conduct the review and recommend changes in the labor laws.

King admitted Friday that he "had some problems trying to set up a commission," which was to have included representatives of both management and labor, but he refused to specify what they were.

Over the past two weeks, B.C. Federation of labor president George Johnston had said he wouldn't serve on such a commission and labor representatives had spoken against the commission, mainly on grounds it would be too slow a mechanism for instituting needed changes and might not be effective.

"I'm not prepared to play games any longer," said King, but he wouldn't say what games had been played. "We've taken this route, and the department has command of the situation."

The three advisers appointed by King are Dr. Noel Hall, director of the Institute of Industrial Relations at the University of B.C.; James Matkins, assistant law professor at UBC, and, D. E. McTaggart, a Vancouver lawyer.

However, King emphasized that despite the changed format of the investigating team, labor and management will have ample opportunity to make their views known to the department and to make any representations they wish before the laws are changed.

"In fairness, that's all anyone can really expect, an opportunity to make their views known," King told a news conference.

One way they'll get the opportunity to make their views known is with a series of conferences on industrial and labor relations. The first of these will take place in mid-April at Harrison Hot Springs and about 70 representatives of managements and labor have been invited to attend.

Later conferences are planned, probably one for the north and one for the Kootenays area, King said.

If labor didn't approve of the setup and boycotted the conference and the advisers, he said. "I would guess they forfeit the opportunity for any input to us" before the laws are changed.

King said he anticipated a majority of the legislative changes might be ready for the fall sitting of the house, including some dealing with collective bargaining.

"It's difficult to be too specific, but I would certainly hope we would be prepared to introduce legislation at that time . . . Whether it would be a complete restructing of collective bargaining laws) remains to be seen."

Besides holding the conferences to gain input from management and labor leaders, "the advisers I have secured will be free to consult privately with trade unions and management groups, they'll be free to conduct their own investigative work . . . and certainly through my office I'll be receiving delegations and briefs and recommendations."

The three will be hired as temporary government employees, at salaries which have not yet been determined. However, $150,000 which had been set aside for the commission will now be used for the advisers, and King said he felt the total expenses of the review of laws would probably run higher.

King had promised, shortly after he took office in September, that he would establish a three-man commission, "an independent tribunal," to examine all legislation in the province under the labor department. It would be formed of one representative from labor and management, plus a chairman.

However, it had been anticipated that it might be 18 months or two years before the review was concluded. (King said Friday he had never suggested that time schedule.)

The minister said he was pleased with the format of having the special advisers review the laws. "I think it's a good direction to go," he said.

"It gives opportunity not only for a thoughtful review of existing legislation, but of alternatives, and this is the important thing . . . Certainly we want a broad input of ideas, possibly some new approaches which might be tried in such areas as collective bargaining."

He praised the three men chosen, saying all had labor experience and "were eminently qualified to comment on the existing laws and to make recommendations for changes."

Avis has a new flat daily rate that can save you up to 45% over our '72 rates. Read how this radical development changed these people's ideas about transportation. It could change yours too.

Donald Morrison, company president. Donald does a lot of flying in the course of his business. But when he used to arrive at his destination, he'd always take a limousine downtown, use cabs to go from meeting to meeting. Then when it was time to go home, he'd take another limousine back to the airport. But then Donald heard about the Avis flat daily rate. It didn't take him too long to figure out the savings. On his most recent trip, he rented a sparkling new Plymouth Fury III for one day, drove himself downtown, did 79 miles and paid just $15 plus gas. That's all. Think about it.

1 day and 79 miles for just $15 plus gas. $15

Bob and Peggy Byron live in a big city high-rise. Weekdays, Bob and Peggy use public transportation.

But at weekends it's another story because they're ski enthusiasts. They used to take the bus or the train to get to the slopes—until they heard about the Avis flat weekend rate. Then...bingo! They realized they could pick up a sparkling new Plymouth Satellite with ski racks on Friday noon, keep it until Monday 9 am and drive all the miles they wanted to for just $28 and gas! (That's 2½ days for the price of two). Now they're regular Avis renters.

Shouldn't you be?

2½ days and 420 miles for just $28 plus gas. $28

John Pinkham has a nice new car of his own...but he also coaches a pee-wee hockey team that plays a lot of games in distant arenas. He used to go to all the trouble of organizing car pools until he heard about the Avis flat daily rate. Then he realized that a roomy Avis station wagon was the answer because it was affordable!

Last game he packed the whole team in a big Dodge Polara Station Wagon, drove 36 miles to the opposition arena, won the game and drove back for just $18 and gas. Shouldn't you be scoring too?

1 day and 72 miles for just $18 plus gas. $18

Ron Hearnden is on the sales force of a big company. He has his own four-year-old compact which he used to drive on all his calls. Then he heard about the Avis flat daily rate with no mileage charge. Ron very quickly figured that driving a sparkling new Avis car on those long trips made a lot more sense than using the family car.

On his last trip, he made seven calls, logged 410 miles and kept the Plymouth Duster for two days for just $26 plus gas.

The travelling salesman who needs a bigger car from time to time.

2 days and 410 miles for just $26 plus gas. $26

The point is, thousands of Canadians like these have found out about the great new Avis flat daily rate which turns car renting into a practical, affordable, everyday solution to their transportation needs.

Shouldn't you pick up the 'phone, dial the number at the base of this ad, and join them?

Bishop's Ashes Go 'Home'

LONDON (CP) — Friends say the ashes of Rt. Rev. Donald Marsh, whose diocese covered almost two million miles of the frozen Canadian north, are to be scattered over the Arctic.

The 69-year-old Anglican Bishop of the Arctic, who died in a London hospital will be cremated here Monday. The ashes then will be flown to Canada with the hope, friends said, that they can be transported to the north.

A London salesman before he went to Canada in 1923, Marsh completed a theological course at Emmanuel College in Saskatoon and was ordained in 1929. He was consecrated bishop in 1950, signing himself Donald the Arctic. Most of his parishioners were Eskimos and Indians, spread from Labrador to Aklavik in the Northwest Territories.

He helped design the construction of a large cathedral in Frobisher Bay and was proud of the theological school built at Pangnirtung on Baffin Island in 1970. Five Eskimos recently graduated from there as clergymen.

While touring theological colleges in Britain last October, Marsh was severely injured in an automobile accident and had been in hospital since then.

His wife, Winnifred, was with him when he died.

Society Assists

St. Vincent De Paul Society of Victoria last year assisted 2,303 persons, including 808 families; provided 3,532 quarts of milk to 10 families; visited 95 families in response to crises and gave gift certificates to 85 families at Christmas.

Music Talent Used for Christ

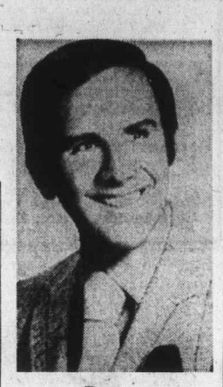
Dave Boyer, a minister's son, sang in gospel meetings until he was 15, then turned pro and began working as a singing saxophonist in night clubs.

When he turned 17, he changed his name to Joey Stevens and signed on as master of ceremonies at Atlantic City's 500 Club.

His career boomed but his personal life became a nightmare of alcoholism and drug addiction.

One night, in a drunken stupor, he staggered through the streets of Marietta, Pa., contemplating suicide. While in this state, he saw through his blurred vision a little old church. This was the turning point and he cried out for salvation to his father's Saviour.

Dave's career now is his ministry. A gifted vocalist, he is also a superb saxophonist and he weaves his talents into a program that reaches his audience.



Boyer
. . . found salvation

Because of his unique background he can talk frankly and in relevant terms about the problems that face today's youth.

His story is portrayed in a film So Long Joey! which will be shown at 8:30 p.m. Sunday in Central Baptist church.

Alcohol, Drugs Features

Three MLAs will be among the speakers at a seminar on alcohol and drugs to be sponsored by Greater Victoria Association on Alcoholism at 7:30 p.m. Friday in First United Church Fellowship Hall and at 9:15 a.m. Saturday in St. John's Anglican Church Hall.

They are Dr. Scott Wallace, (Conservative—Oak Bay), Rev. Peter Rolston, (NDP—Dewdney) and Rehabilitation Minister Norman Levi.

At the Friday meeting, Dr. W. G. Black of Vancouver will deal with practical alcohol-drug programs. He is associated with the Alcohlism Foundation of B.C. and has been president of the Alcohol Research and Education Council, director of citizenship in B.C. for the federal government and former head of the education department at the University of British Columbia.

Wallace will deal with health problems while Hugh Roberts, association secretary, will explore the alcohol-drug relation.

Rolston will discuss difficulties and successes of halfway houses.

At Saturday morning's session in St John's, Prof. Ernest Forbes, Canadian history specialist at University of Victoria, will speak on Canada's alcohol problem in historical perspective.

Cathie Perkins, director of the Victoria branch of the Alcoholism Foundation of B.C., and Major Bruce Harcourt of the Salvation Army's Harbor Light will discuss their programs.

Levi will speak on the problems the government faces in seeking to cope with drugs and alcohol.

There is a charge of $1 for each session.

Recital With Trio

A recital featuring harp, bassoon and organ will be given in St. John's Anglican Church, Quadra and Mason, at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

Performers will be Kathryn Ely, principal harpist with Victoria symphony orchestra; Jesse Read, bassoonist, music student at University of Victoria and member of the symphony, and Rev. Basil Foote, organist, a Benedictine from Westminster Abbey in Mission, B.C.

The program will include two bassoon and harp numbers, Ravel's Pavan and Saint-Saens' Sonata. Foote will play Bach's Trio Sonata No. 1 in E flat Major, Franck's Chorale No. 2 in B Minor Alfred Hollins' Trumpet Minuet and Michael Young's Sonata of Joy.

Young wrote the sonata in 1969 when he was 30. A native of California, he completed studies in organ and composition at the University of Washington, Seattle.

He moved to Vancouver in 1970 and now is organist and choir-master of St. Peter and St. Paul Church there.

John Gallienne, organist and choirmaster at St. John's says Young expressed three kinds of joy in his sonata — "Bubbling and effervescent joy, deep, wonderful joy and wild exultant joy.

The composer has written for organ, piano, harpsichord, piano trio, organ and brass, woodwinds, recorder, choir and solo voice.

Recital With Trio

A recital featuring harp, bassoon and organ will be given in St. John's Anglican Church, Quadra and Mason, at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

Performers will be Kathryn Ely, principal harpist with Victoria symphony orchestra; Jesse Read, bassoonist, music student at University of Victoria and member of the symphony, and Rev. Basil Foote, organist, a Benedictine from Westminster Abbey in Mission, B.C.

The program will include two bassoon and harp numbers, Ravel's Pavan and Saint-Saens' Sonata. Foote will play Bach's Trio Sonata No. 1 in E flat Major, Franck's Chorale No. 2 in B Minor Alfred Hollins' Trumpet Minuet and Michael Young's Sonata of Joy.

Young wrote the sonata in 1969 when he was 30. A native of California, he completed studies in organ and composition at the University of Washington, Seattle.

He moved to Vancouver in 1970 and now is organist and choir-master of St. Peter and St. Paul Church there.

John Gallienne, organist and choirmaster at St. John's says Young expressed three kinds of joy in his sonata — "Bubbling and effervescent joy, deep, wonderful joy and wild exultant joy.

The composer has written for organ, piano, harpsichord, piano trio, organ and brass, woodwinds, recorder, choir and solo voice.

City Musician Will Sing Out

A Victoria musician is back home for a performance with the Power and Light Company, a gospel rock group who will appear at 7:30 p.m. today at a Sing Out show in the Apostolic Church, 2303 Dowler Place.

Brandy Carbol, 18, a former student of Victoria high school, plays lead guitar and bass. He also sings and composes his own music.

His brother Courtland said in Victoria this week that Brady has been composing ever since he took up the guitar about six years ago.

Brady attended the Capital City Assembly at Princess and Chambers before he went on tour last September.

He is one of 10 members of the group who were chosen by Campus Life, a department of Youth For Christ, to give concerts across the country.

They were chosen from various schools and colleges and had two months of training before starting their tour which will take them to more than 300 schools, churches, clubs and other organizations to perform for an estimated audience of 200,000 teenagers.

Each member is chosen from a large list of applicants, is required to take one year off school, raise a tuition fee of $1,200 and then go through training.

This period prepares them in two areas — musical concerts and relating to students on a one-to-one basis.

The lead singer is Ken Fitch who has played a number of lead roles in major musicals, including Sound of Music. His wife is also in the group.

Other members are Cam Shearer, conductor, from the University of Western Ontario; Peter Suderman, drummer, from the University of Manitoba; Dave Ruff, sound engineer; Dave Schwab, trumpet engineer and theology graduate; Wendy Campbell, lead female, from the University of Alberta; John Lowrie, trombone and Debbie Nelson, singer, from the University of British Columbia.

St. Luke's Balance Healthy

All commitments for 1972 were met by S. Luke's Parish Church, Cedar Hill, and there is a healthy balance for 1973, according to a financial report read at the church's annual meeting Monday.

Attendance was up from 1971 and reports from all organizations showed a very good year, the rector, Archdeacon C.E.F. Wolff said later in the week.

He announced the gift of a stained glass window from the Cook family in memory of two sons, Flying Officer James Cook and William Stuart Cook.

R. R. Price is rector's warden for 1973 and Mrs. J. A. D. Leamy, people's warden.

STUDY VACATIONS
in England & France for Canadian High School students

The British Guardian Group of Companies, leaders in communications media and publishers of the famous 'Manchester' Guardian Newspaper, have designed a European Study Vacation specially for North American high school students; it comprises three weeks in England (based on London) and one week in France (based on Paris) and takes place in July and August 1973.

The Vacation provides students with an opportunity to participate in a stimulating and exciting programme during which they study life in Britain and France at first hand and deepen their knowledge of the two countries which have the closest connection with their own.

The Academic Programme, directed by leading educationalist Dr. John Hickey, is combined with a varied and interesting recreational programme. Students get to know London and Paris, visit historic towns such as Oxford, Cambridge, Winchester, Stratford; see the English and French countryside; visit theatres, museums, art galleries, Courts of Law, British schools and national institutions. Throughout, they have time to follow their own interests and make independent visits to sightsee, shop, visit relatives, meet their contemporaries or simply stroll around and absorb the atmosphere of some of the most interesting places in England and France.

Please write to the Registrar for the comprehensive Vacation Prospectus.

Banishment Steps Eyed

Christians Lure Jews

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israel may take steps to banish Christian missionaries from the Holy Land for trying — sometimes successfully — to lure Israelis away from Judaism, a government official said Friday.

According to groups backing a proposal to oust the missionaries, between 5,000 and 6,000 Israelis a year have been converted to Christianity by missionaries since the 1967 Middle-East war.

The government official said Prime Minister Golda Meir's cabinet will discuss the status of missionaries, including their possible banishment, at its regular meeting Sunday.

"We don't take to missionaries and proselytizing," the official said of the estimated 1,000 missionaries in Israel. "We have to be rid of this problem somehow."

An interior ministry spokesman said approximately 10 missionaries were expelled last year while others left "after we gave them hints that they are not welcome."

The past week has seen three attacks against missionaries, arson attempts against the Mount of Olives Bible Centre and the Mount Zion Press plus an explosion at the home of the local leader of Jews for Jesus.

The woman leader, Shira Lindsay, formerly of Dallas, Texas, denied trying to convert Israelis. She said she and her group are "just Jews who found Jesus and the teachings of the gospel and have come to Israel because of this belief."

Eight members of the militant Jewish Defence League were arrested in the arson attempts. But the league's leader, Rabbi Meir Kahane, denied they were responsible even though his group opposes the missionaries.

Kahane staged a one-day hunger strike Thursday at the wailing wall, Judaism's holiest shrine, in protest against missionary activities. Unless the government does something, he said, "There will be violence."

"I don't like soul snatching," Kahane told newsmen. "If you lose a Jew in Auschwitz or through conversion, it's still a soul lost to our people."

Sooke Pastor Heads Area

New moderator of the Presbyterian Church Prespytery of Vancouver Island for 1973, is Rev. Robert Cunningham, minister of Knox Church, Sooke.

He was elected to the post at the annual meeting of the presbytery in his church on Tuesday.

A native of Ireland, Cunningham spent 12 years as a missionary in Zaire, West Africa, formerly the Congo.

He studied at the French language school in Paris for 18 months and is bilingual. He came to Canada in 1962 and studied at George Williams University. He later graduated from Presbyterian College, Montreal.

He has held pastorates in Quebec and Ontario.

He was called to Knox Presbyterian Church in Sooke several months ago. He is married and has three daughters and one son.

Also at the annual meeting, the presbytery elected commissioners to the general assembly in June and made preliminary arrangements for the induction of Rev. Bruce Molloy as successor to Rev. Dr. J. L. W. McLean, former minister of St. Andrew's, Victoria.

March 3 Retreat

A retreat will be held at St. Mary's Priory, Langford, for both men and women from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday, March 3. Father Donal McLoughlin of Sooke will lead the retreat which is sponsored by Esquimalt United Church. Cost is $5 per person. Mrs. Ollie Alexander, 386-7071, and the church's minister, Rev. Philip Ross, 384-3031, are taking reservations.

Each Missionary Will Visit Member's Home

A week-long missions convention at Glad Tidings Pentecostal Church will end Sunday with missionaries from Kenya, Uganda, Hong Kong and Brazil taking part in Sunday school at 9:45 a.m. and in services at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

A men's breakfast was scheduled for 8:30 a.m. today in Holyrood House. Topic for the breakfast—What can We Men do to Help You Men Out on the Field?

At 8 p.m. today each of the missionaries will visit the home of one of the members of the congregation where about 30 people will have gathered to share the missionary's life and ministry and hear about the challenge of missions.

The Glad Tidings congregation, now in its 50th anniversary year, can look back on the record missionary giving of more than $35,000 last year.

For 1973 the church's special project is to completely equip radio studio facilities in the Pentecostal Evangelistic Centre in Nairobi, Kenya, where Rev. Paul Hawkes, the present Victoria pastor, served from 1961 to 1964.

The Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada Kenya Missionary Outreach was started in 1924. The first missionaries were Rev. and Mrs. Otto Keller. Keller died in 1943 and was buried at the mission station of Kisumu. Mrs. Keller continued on the field for several years and maintained her interest in the work until her death in 1953.

The seminar continues at 10 a.m. today. It began Friday night with a discussion of the urgency of preparing children for life in a pagan culture.

Today's topics are: 10 a.m. working with the Word of the Lord. 11 a.m. — Working with the Body of Christ. 2 p.m. — A Christian View of Knowledge. 3 p.m. Implementing a Christian View of Knowledge in the Curriculum.

The Parents' Fellowship of the Victoria Christian Elementary School will serve lunch today.

'Y' Looking For Canoes

When you've finished paddling your own canoe, let the YM-YWCA know about it, John Durkin said this week. The Y's Camp Thunderbird can use it.

Durkin, youth director, says fibreglass, wood-and-canvas or aluminum craft will be most welcome. The only requirement is that they be repairable. He'll arrange to pick them up. His number at the Y is 386-7511.

Discharge Pattern Fixed By Ostler

A clear pattern emerged Friday in Victoria Provincial Court on the issue of absolute and conditional discharges — if the crown does not object, they probably will be allowed.

The pattern was seen when Judge William Ostler said the landmark case for Canadian courts on discharges meant only that they were appropriate in special circumstances — and yet he granted one when the prosecutor did not object.

Absolute and conditional discharges became a part of Canadian law last July 15 with the crieterion that they should be in the besst interests of the accused and "not contrary to the public interest."

The federal justice department immediately suggested their use for first soft-drug offenders but, in Victoria, probation became the norm in such cases and discharges were allowed in special circumstances rather than as a standard penalty.

In September, a Victoria man who pleaded guilty to shoplifting asked for a discharge because of the possible effect on his job but Ostler imposed a $250 fine. This was appealed and the B.C. Appeal Court last Monday granted an absolute discharge.

Wednesday, Ostler allowed a conditional discharge (the condition being six months' probation) in a case of possession of a narcotic because the man involved was seeking custody of his baby daughter.

Friday's case was not as strong. Ian Baillie MacLean, 21, of 5435 Alderley, had pleaded guilty Jan. 26 to a charge of possesion of a small amount of marijuana when checked Jan. 9 by Saanich police and defence lawyer Douglas Macfarlane sought a discharge because of a possible future effect.

Macfarlane said MacLean, who was not in court, had finished one year of university and felt a criminal conviction might mean a continuation in agriculture studies was a waste of time. A discharge, on the other hand, would mean there woud be no criminal record for MacLean.

Ostler said: "In determing the matter of discharges, the courts must be very careful not to discriminate between one citizen and another or between one class of citizen and another."

He said all the landmark case did "was to state authoritatively that discharges are appropriate in special cases."

MacFarlane said the appeal court allowed a discharge because the crown did not object to one but Ostler countered the court's ruling also "agreed with the remarks of the sentencing judge." He didn't say so but the sentencing judge was Ostler.

To settle the matter, Ostler said he agreed there could be discharges in special cases and asked prosecutor Robert Johnston if he objected. Johnston did not and the judge, noting MacLean had not even appeared, granted a discharge with six months' probation as the sole condition.

B.C. to Iceland: $25,000 in Aid

British Columbia will give $25,000 to Iceland for relief of victims of recent volcanic eruptions in the Vestman Islands area of the country.

Provincial Secretary Ernest Hall announced Friday the grant will come from the province's fund for agriculture aid to developing countries and world disaster areas.

Hall said that "thousands of Icelanders have lost their homes and sources of livelihood as a result of the eruption" which almost completely destroyed one town.

He said the money would go to a fund established by the Icelandic parliament for relief of the victims. It will be sent through Canada's honorary consul-general in Iceland, H. F. Hallgrimsson.

Mare Gallops Into Automobile

The last thing Mrs. Margret Klubi expected to see as she drove her 1969 Pontiac through the intersection of West Saanich Road at Beaver Lake during the noon hour Friday was a horse galloping right at her — but there it was.

The six-year-old mare, which had galloped more than a mile after unseating her rider near Elk Lake, ran into the right side of the car, shattering the front passenger seat window and cracking the windshield — and suffering injuries so serious she had to be destroyed.

Mrs. Klubi, 4862 Beaver, said she was going through the intersection when she suddenly saw the horse go around a truck waiting at a stop sign on Beaver Lake Road and "come full force at me."

"She couldn't go in front of the car or behind it," she said. "It was just the wrong place at the wrong time. I was sure scared. So many times I have children in the car."

The horse had unseated Mary White, 20, of 3499 Richmond, who was only shaken up and quickly got up to run after the mare, which was owned by an acquaintance. She reached the intersection about 20 minutes after the collision, running all the way.

After the impact, the horse fell and then rose to stumble a few steps to the roadside. Veterinarians later told Saanich police the mare had suffered severe leg injuries and possibly internal injuries.

Damage to the car was about $400 and Mrs. Klubi said someone "would have been killed" is the car had beem smaller or someone had been in the front passenger seat. She was still picking bits of glass and horsehairs out of the car at a late afternoon hour.

Railway Unions Reject Offers

In the night's key game, Oak Bay Bays hammered Mt. Douglas Rams, 63-34. Totems, in a low-scoring affair, dumped visiting Reynolds Roadrunners, 42-24. Esquimalt Dockers, in the night's most exciting game, nipped visiting Belmont Braves, 60-59. The upset came at Mount View, where previously-winless Claremont Spartans scored a 59-48 decision over previously-unbeaten Hornets.

Rams, playing before an overflow crowd of about 700 with about the same number turned away before game time, fell under a second-period onslaught by the Bays, who have been on a tear since losing Monday to Mount View, 55-59.

Needing the two points to catch the first-place Rams, Bays took a 10-7 lead in the first period and then rattled in 24 points while holding Rams to nine to put the outcome out of doubt by half-time. Grant Boland, matched against Doug Mosher, held the high-scoring Rams to 10 points while scoring 12. Dave Kirzinger topped the Bays, who moved into a first-place tie with Rams, with 17 points. Rams added to their own misery with 42 turnovers.

Totems depended on the one-two punch of Steve Rothwell and John Hampton in a slow-paced win over Roadrunners. Rothwell had 19 points and Hampton picked up 15. Totems scored 15 straight points before Roadrunners scored the game's final basket.

Darrel Deane scored what proved to be the winning basket and the Dockers held on grimly for the final two minutes against the Braves. Ben Shotton was the top scorer for Esquimalt with 16 points.

Belmont Tomahawks broke a first-place deadlock with Mt. Douglas Ramblers in the Victoria High School Girls Basketball League on Friday night.

Tomahawks pulled out a 35-33 decision at Oak Bay to move two points in front of Ramblers, who were idle.

In the other two games Friday, Reynolds Roadrunners consolidated their hold on fourth spot by beating visiting Esquimalt Dockettes, 45-39, and Claremont edged Victoria High Tigers, 40-38, at Victoria High.

Terry Weeks of Tomahawks checked high-scoring Marg Mainwaring, who still managed to get 17 points. Jan Newell led the Belmont scorers with 13 points.

The game, close affair all the way, was tied, 14-14, after the first quarter, 22-22, at the half and 28-28, entering the final quarter.

Miss Mainwaring had scored 99 points in her last five games but was slowed down by Miss Weeks' close checking throughout the game.

Dockettes had a 17-16 lead at halftime but couldn't hold the Roadrunners in the second half. Shirley Skaarup scored 14 points and Janis Turner and Diane McDonald had 10 points each for Roadrunners. Cathy Wilkinson topped the Esquimalt scorers with 11 points, one more than Debbie Knowles.

Tigers, who led most of the way, fell in the last minute when Sam Munroe and Denise Gallagher sank foul shots. Tigers had a 22-16 lead after the first half.

Alana Gallagher scored 13 points for Claremont and Wendy Wallace had 12 points for the winless Tigers.

Soccer Barbers Play Here Today

There are going to be quite a few short-handed barber shops in Vancouver today.

Olympics of the Vancouver Inter-City Soccer League are bringing over a squad of 15 players for their match against Victoria West-United of the Pacific Coast League and every one of them is a barber. Even the three juveniles in the team, including goalkeeper Rick Trent, are attending barber school in Vancouver.

The game, which kicks off at 2 p.m. at Royal Athletic Park, will be the fourth interlocking contest here in four weekends.

Centre-forward Tom Forrester returns to the United lineup after missing a game following a bad collision two weeks ago when he broke his nose.

However, the team will be without Bob Bolitho, who is serving a one-game suspension for fighting in last weekend's match against the Blues in New Westminster. Jan Bentley will take his place in the forwards.

Victoria Gorge Molsons, who hold a one-point edge over second-placed United, play the third-place Blues in New Westminster Sunday.

Esquimalt Girls Trailing

DAWSON CREEK — The Julie Barber rink from Esquimalt has a win and two losses following the first day's play in the B.C. girls' curling championship.

Three draws will be played today and a playoff, if necessary, will be held Sunday.

Cricket Tests Underway

England and Pakistan both did well Friday but Australia struggled for runs when three different cricket test matches got under way.

The MCC dismissed Sri Lanka for only 86 runs in Colombo and at the close of play on the first day England had replied with 80 runs for four wickets.

Majid Khan hit 110 runs to carry Pakistan to 300 for seven wickets on the first day of the third test against New Zealand in Auckland. Majid figured in a third-wicket stand of 104 runs with Mushtaq Mohammed, who made 61.

The West Indies used tight bowling and sharp fielding to limit Australia to a lunch-time total of 91 for one wicket and to only 170 for three at the end of the first day of the first test in Kingston.

Excellent goalkeeping, solid defensive combinations and well-balanced forward lines — Saskatoon Blades have them all.

Blades, leaders in the Eastern Division of the Western Canada Hockey League for most of this season, are being touted as the WCHL representative in the Memorial Cup playoffs this season.

And it's little wonder.

Blades, who are at Memorial Arena tonight to meet Victoria Cougars, have the top goalkeeper in Ed Humphreys, who has the best goals-against average (2.68) and leads the league in shutouts with three.

The defence is anchored by former-Cougar George Pesut and all-stars Pat Price and Dave Lewis.

And the forward units include all-stars Bob Bourne, Dennis Abgrall and Russ Walker.

However, the Jackie McLeod-coached squad has allowed only 149 goals in 54 starts and has an eight-point lead over secondplace Flin Flon Bombers. Blades have only lost nine games, also a league low.

In their only other appearance in Victoria this season, Blades took a 5-2 decision.

Cougars may be without defensive stalward Rick Williams, a former Blade, who suffered a badly-bruised ankle on Thursday in Vancouver.

Williams had the ankle x-rayed Friday and did not skate at practice.

Game time is 8:30 p.m.

In league play Friday, Calgary Centennials thumped the visiting Edmonton Oil Kings, 5-2, before 4886 fans and Regina Pats, playing before 5500 hometown fans, blasted Swift Current Broncos, 6-2.

EDMONTON (2) — Fred Comrie, John Rogers. CALGARY (5) — Russ Welchnik, Mike Rogers, Mike Clarke, Tim Peck, Don Ashby. Attendance: 4886.

Canucks Crush Flames Ending Winless Skein

Vancouver Canucks, for one of the very few times this National Hockey League season, got it all together Friday night.

Canucks, struggling in the depths of the East Division, scored their first win since Feb. 3 when they crushed the visiting Atlanta Flames, 5-0, ending a winless streak at six games.

And it was a complete team effort that gave Canucks the victory.

Goalkeeper Ed Dyck blocked 18 shots to record his first NHL shutout, the defenders kept the Flames offbalance all night and five different forwards contributed goals.

Tonight's game between Detroit and Vancouver will be telecast on Channels 2 and 6, starting at 5.

Dyck, the former Western Canada Hockey League allstar, had a comparatively easy time with the first-year Flames, who only managed two shots in the final period.

Myre was beaten in the first period when Bobby Lalonde and Gerry O'Flaherty scored 60 seconds apart.

Canuck-rookie John Wright, on a brilliant individual effort, broke a lengthy scoring slump with the only goal of the second period and Don Tannahill and Dale Tallon capped the scoring in the final session.

Lalonde and Tallon both scored while Atlanta defenceman Noel Picard was serving penalties.

The win moved Canucks to within four points of sixth-place Toronto Maple Leafs while the Flames remained fifth in the West Division, two points behind fourth-place St. Louise Blues.

In the only other Friday game, Detroit Red Wings and California Golden Seals battled to a 2-2 tie in Oakland.

Vikettes and Vikings Trim Calgary Clubs

University of Victoria men's and women's basketball teams both held their own against Calgary opponents Friday night.

Vikings jumped to a 26-18 half-time lead and held on for a 56-50 victory over the University of Calgary Dinosaurs in a Canada West University Athletic Association men's league game at the UVic gymnasium.

And the UVic Vikettes exploded for 11 straight points just before half time and were never threatened after that as they romped to a 65-33 win over University of Calgary Dinnies in a women's league game.

Vikettes led, 21-14, a few minutes before the interval but applied a successful full-court press to sweep to 32-14 by half time.

The driving play of Lorna McHattie, who scored 20 points, was once again a feature of the Vikettes' attack and Diana Brozuk, who got 14 points, shot well from outside. Vikettes also got a great performance on defence from Bev Draper.

Scoring was well spread among the Vikings players with Tom Holmes scoring 10 points, Brent Mullin getting nine and Corky Jossul, Jim Hunter and Jim Duddridge all scoring eight points.

Chemainus Blues will have to beat champions Butler Brothers in the final Vancouver Island Hockey League game of the season tonight if they want to finish in a tie for second place.

Vern Neilson, Peter Okopski and John Kirkpatrick scored for the Buccaneers while Grahame Brown scored both Labatts goals, the second on a penalty shot late in the third period.

In Friday's other game, Vern Gibson, Bob Buie, Tom Connors and Dan Roy scored to give London Boxing Club a 4-2 victory over University of Victoria Norsemen.

Boxers led, 3-1, after the first period but the university team closed the gap to 3-2 at the end of two periods.

After a scoreless first period, the teams each scored one goal in the remaining periods.

Red Wing-centre Marcel Dionne put Detroit ahead by 2-1 at 4:23 of the third period only to see Craig Patrick tie the score 24 seconds later.

Victory Touches Off Revelry

FRIENDSVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — There is joy in Friendsville.

Friendsville Academy has finally won a basketball game after six years and 138 consecutive losses.

Friendsville dumped St. Camillus Academy of Corbin, Ky., Thursday night, 64-43. For St. Camillus it was loss No. 49 in a row.

And the celebrating continued Friday.

"We've been getting telephone calls from all over the country," said coach Rick Little, who got a ride around the gym on his players' shoulders after the contest.

"I've had calls from as far away as San Francisco. We haven't been able to get much done around here."

School officials called off classes for the 55 students at noon.

The victory also means Little can shave. The 22-year-old mentor, in his first season as a basketball coach, had vowed earlier in the year he would not shave until his team won a game.

Ice Hockey On Grass It Isn't Field Hockey Offers Something Different

By MAX LOW

Want to watch something a little different?

Then wander one Sunday to Pemberton Park, to Lansdowne Junior High School or to Lampson Street Park in Esquimalt and take in a game of men's field hockey.

It's a fast, skillful game played with a hard ball and a curved stick, and it isn't, as Dave Auld of the Castaways Club points out, "ice hockey on grass."

Although relatively new in Canada and particularly in Victoria, field hockey has been a popular sport for many years in places like Germany, Britain, New Zealand and Australia. It's the national winter game in both India and Pakistan and these countries have long vied for top honors in the Olympic Games.

Right now, games organized by the Vancouver Island Men's Field Hockey Association attract only a sprinkling of faithful fans — mainly wives and friends — who stand or sit in clusters along the touch line.

But there's no doubt the sport is growing tremendously and all the dedicated young (and not quite so young) officials and players look to the day it will blossom and the crowds will come.

Already, the growth, although delightfully informal and somewhat unorthodox in pattern, has been phenomenal, as I discovered in a four-way chat this week with Auld and Al Chedd, Craig Wilson and Jim Sherlock, all of the Rebels Club.

Chedd spun his memory back to 1957 when there was only one men's team here called simply Victoria, which picked up exhibition games with Vancouver.

Then, late in the 1957-58 season, the men began playing "mixed hockey" with women.

"It wasn't men against women," Chedd said, "but teams combining both men and women and that really was something," he said, with a grin.

In 1958, the girls formed their own Vancouver Island Women's Field Hockey Association and the men realized it was time for action.

Still, it continued on a very unofficial basis and in the 1960s three teams — Victoria Tigers, University of Victoria Vikings and Shawnigan Lake Boys' School — met in exhibition contests.

Then in 1969, Victoria was offered a match against a touring Trinidad team but it had to be official and that's when two men — Emile Beltgens and Ivor Hughes—played a big part.

Beltgens, "Mr. Field Hockey Promoter," swung into action and single-handedly got the Vancouver Island Men's Field Hockey Association under way and had it officially aligned to the B.C. body and the Canadian Field Hockey Association in time for the game with Trinidad. He has been made the first life member of the VIFHA.

Hughes became the first president and he's still playing his big part. As Sherlock says, "Ivor's done such a fabulous job, no one has asked him to move over." Hughes is still president, although his job is taking him to Vancouver and soon there must be a change.

A crowd of about 500 took the opportunity to watch the first international men's field hockey game at Royal Athletic Park and Trinidad won, 2-1.

That same year, Victoria sent a men's team to the Canadian championships and beat both Quebec and Manitoba.

About 350 watched Victoria take on an Argentine team here in 1971 (the visitors won, 5-0) and there will be another chance to see a big game later this season when the Hotspurs Club of Perth, Australia, visits.

When the league was formed here in 1969, there were five teams — Tigers, Red Barons, UVic, Oak Bay Redmen and Fossils.

To avoid a color clash with the Red Barons, the Redmen became the Orangemen but the Barons later split up and the Rebels Club was formed.

Auld, a keen cricketer with Castaways who played his field hockey then with Fossils, managed to get enough Castaways players interested to enter a team in the league in 1971.

Now there are eight teams and more than 100 players involved and officials expect it to grow even more.

Last season there were only six teams in the league but this year Wilson, a New Zealander who with Bobby Raine of the Orangemen has worked hard promoting junior field hockey here, formed the young Rebels Red team.

Now Chedd has formed a third Rebels team, the Blues, who are playing on an exhibition basis this year but will enter the league next season.

Rebels Reds are the defending Island champions and their main rivals are Tigers, a team made up of East Indian players.

Sherlock is goalkeeper with the Rebels, who are coached by experienced Brian Foley.

Getting good coaches and referees has been the league's main problem since its formation.

As Wilson says, "the game isn't old enough here yet to have enough players who have given it up and turned to coaching." Mostly, the clubs are coached by the most experienced player.

"I'm more or less sort of the Castaways' coach," Auld confessed with a grin.

"Although it's much better now, we had trouble getting referee for a long time," Sherlock said.

"Because the women were organized before us, we had women refereeing our games for a while," Wilson pointed out. "This was sometimes a problem, particularly if the women weren't firm enough as in many of the early games there was a lot of roughness and players had to be sent off."

With a chuckle Chedd remembered when he was once sent off by his wife who was refereeing a game.

Both Auld, who is a teacher at Glenlyon boys' school, and Wilson believe the game will blossom here "if the seed is planted in the schools."

"It has to be handled in the schools though," Wilson said "as the rules are far harder to understand then say in soccer and rugby."

As well as at Glenlyon, field hockey is also being played at Shoreline and Central junior high schools and, although there is no high school league yet, they're playing it at Oak Bay and Victoria High.

Out of town, it is also played at Shawnigan Lake Boys' School and at Brentwood College.

It is, Wilson said, becoming popular with a wide cross-section of boys and is a game in which it is not necessary to be "six-feet-six and 200 pounds."

"A lot more Canadian boys are taking it up now because here on the coast they may not get a chance to play ice hockey," Chedd said. "They may not be good enough with their feet for soccer but are good with their hands and field hockey is a fine outlet."

Why do people take up field hockey?

Chedd smiled. He was at school in Vancouver when he started. He played soccer, but once he tried field hockey he was hooked.

Auld injured an ankle playing rugby and decided to "get back into things gently by trying field hockey for a while." He never returned to rugby.

Wilson played "a bit of everything as a boy in New Zealand — rugby, soccer and cricket — but took up field hockey when 11, and stayed with it.

Sherlock, a basketball coach here for 13 years who once led First United Saints to a Canadian title, was introduced to field hockey by Wilson.

He previously had played basketball, Canadian football and ice hockey as a bantam.

"I was in goal then because I couldn't skate and I'm still in goal," he said with a laugh.

Jones Blazes Into Lead

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Grier Jones put together a blazing birdie-birdie-par-eagle finish and established a two-stroke lead Friday with a 66 in the second round of the $170,000 Andy Williams-San Diego Open golf tournament.

The 26-year-old Jones, a longtime struggler who came into his own with two victories and more than $100,000 in winnings last season, put together his six-under-par effort on the North course, one of two layouts at Torrey Pines used for the first two rounds of this tournament.

The young man from Kansas had a 36-hole total of 125, nine under par. He owned a two-stroke margin over Tom Kite, Bruce Crampton, Hale Irwin and Bob Dickson, who were at 137.

Crampton, an Australian veteran who has already won two events this season, was tied with Kite and Irwin for the lead at the end of Thursday's first round. They matched 70s on the tougher South course.

Dickson had a 68 on the North layout.

Just one stroke further back, at 138, was veteran Billy Casper. The two-time U.S. Open champion, seeking an end to a lengthy slump, had another 69 and was in excellent position to make a run for his first victory since 1971.

Lee Trevino continued to have his troubles. Trevino, who missed the cut in his first start and hasn't made a serious challenge this season, could do no better than a 74 for 145.

The former National Hockey League star with Chicago Black Hawks, now playing-coach of Winnipeg Jets in the World Hockey Association, slammed in another two goals Friday night.

He was backed up by Bill Sutherland and Ab McDonald, who also scored two goals each, and the Jets trounced Houston, 7-0, in Winnipeg to increase their lead over the second-place Aeros in the Western Division to 11 points.

Hull gave a great display Thursday night before his former home-town fans, scoring four goals to help the Jets down Chicago Cougars, 7-2. He has now scored 14 goals in his last seven games.

It was the second shutout in two games for Joe Daley, who made 31 saves.

In Friday night's other games, Quebec Nordiques, although outshot, 51-17, got great goalkeeping from Serge Aubry, who stopped 46 shots, to tie Los Angeles Sharks, 2-2, and John McKenzie scored three times to help Philadelphia Blazers down New York Raiders, 9-2.

Horsepowered

A coldframe of some sort is a most useful asset to any garden, for with a little shelter from chilly winds and late spring frosts, all kinds of flower and vegetable seeds can be given a protected early start without cluttering up all the sunny windowsills in the house.

In our mild climate, such a structure needn't be an elaborate affair. Mind you, it is grand if you can afford a permanent frame made of brick or concrete or heavy planking, but a light timber framework covered with a good tough plastic film will serve admirably. Incidentally, in fastening plastic film to wood, it isn't a bad idea to sneak the office stapler home for the weekend.

Fold the sheet plastic into a double thickness hem at the points of greatest strain, bang in a few staples, and you're in business. Don't forget, though, that really light frame covers should be anchored down in some fashion so they won't blow away in high winds.

The ideal way of heating the soil in the frame is by means of a soil-heating cable complete with automatic thermostat. The cost is a bit high, it is true, and it isn't often that electric current is handy to the particular spot in the garden where we want to place our frame. Fortunately, there are other and cheaper ways of providing some warmth.

For hundreds of years, old-time gardeners have used a mass of fermenting cow or horse manure to generate the necessary warmth for starting seeds early in the season. This works just as well today as it did when Queen Victoria was a young girl.

Use fairly fresh horse manure for preference, toning it down a bit by mixing in an equal bulk of decaying leaves; those leaves you raked up off the lawn last fall will serve admirably. If you can't get horse manure, cow manure will serve, and even fresh lawn mowings mixed with rotting leaves will generate a surprising amount of heat.

You will need a layer of fermenting material about 18 inches thick and about two feet wider and longer than your frame, so the bed extends a foot beyond the frame on all sides. Trample the bed thoroughly so it will be fairly firm, then sit your light frame on it and anchor it down with stakes, wires or whatever method comes to mind.

If you purpose sowing your seeds directly into the floor of the frame, put in a six-inch layer of rather fine, sandy loam soil. Make it firm, rake it level, then go ahead and sow your seeds as in an outdoor seed bed.

If you will be doing your sowing in pots or boxes — and I prefer this method myself — it is a good idea to put down a two-inch layer of sand, small gravel or coarse cinders over the hotbed material and sit your pots and flats on this. This provices good drainage when you water your seedlings and acts as a barrier to prevent pests and diseases from contaminating the seed-sowing soil mixture.

While the fermenting mixture in a hotbed brings the soil up to a temperature favorable to the vigorous germination of seeds, it doesn't warm the air above the soil to any appreciable degree, and delicate young seedlings may suffer if a really severe cold spell should come along. For this reason, the hotbed should be in the sunniest corner of the garden to trap solar heat and to supply the necessary light for sturdy growth.

Fatal To Read at Doctor's, Says STAN DELAPLANE

Feel Worse While You Wait

The nurse put her head through the judas window and said "Doctor is ready now." I thought, "Ah, but ready for what?"

Many a power of industry has had his juice shut off by saturated fats. We go in once in awhile for the cholesterol checkup and such.

I read popular medical magazines in the outer office. By the time the girl says, "Doctor is ready" — I have developed a full set of symptoms.

I could diagnose my own case. Go home and call for the lawyer and pluck at the coverlets.

Science goes on discovering things that are bad for you. Then they tell you.

We've got cyclamates out of the house. Who knows whether we got them out in time. It may be gathering in the arteries. Getting ready to pounce.

For years I buttered my toast and ate it.

"It makes you big and strong. It makes your hair curly," said grandma. "Eat the crusts."

Well, it didn't make my hair curly.

In face, my hair began departing after a number of years.

Then Science discovered butter could cut you off in your prime.

Too late, I was buttered up.

We come out 4-0 on our cholesterol. Apparently I am an individual who doesn't hoard butter in the pipelines.

We come out OK but apprehensive.

We stop at the water fountain and guzzle. But are we in time?

Grandma said: "There are more ways of killing a cat than stuffing it with butter."

She was full of such wise sayings. "Feed a cold and starve a fever," she said. "A green May makes a full church yard."

There is no BETTER way of killing a cat than stuffing him with butter.

He was not dying of butter but of shotgun slugs. Nonetheless, it's good advice.

It's a bull move to eat almost anything. Next week they may declare it to be dangerous.

It is more of a bull move to read the health magazines in the outer office. You might pop off of a misprint.

"Scientists fed charcoal to a group of selected rats," said the magazine. Selected for what, you may ask. Selected for murder, that's what.

It seems a lot of charcoal knocked the selected rats off. They died like rats.

"Eat your crusts and go to school," said grandma. The crusts were a little burned. A little charcoaly. I went to school and learned to read. Two bull moves in the same day.

Debbie's Irene a Hit

JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD — Don't sell Debbie Reynolds short. When Irene hits Broadway on March 13, the town will have its new musical hit. When Debbie, the perfectionist, called in her old friend Gower Champion to take over for Sir John Gielgud in staging the classical musical, some columnists started to predict disaster. At the time, I talked with her husband Harry Karl, who said: "You know Debbie and what a perfectionist she is. You can be sure when that show hits Broadway it will be perfect." It's now playing Washington and the reviews there are raves, especially for Debbie and Patsy Kelly as well as the whole production.

★ ★ ★

Awhile back everyone in town was a little nonplussed when John Wayne showed up for the party at the Bistro for the Russian ambassador. It even astounded me so I asked Duke why recently. "Henry Kissinger invited me personally. I said 'Those commies think I'm a monster.'" "Don't worry," said Kissinger, "we need a few monsters around." So Duke went and had a roaring time drinking with the ambassador, Duke extolled the virtues of his favorite tequila and sent the diplomat a case. Just the other day, Duke received a case of rare Russian vodka in return.

★ ★ ★

★ ★ ★

Hal David, who usually writes songs to Burt Bacharach's music, has written the lyrics for a new one with Henry Mancini. Mancini's music for Oklahoma Crude was the inspiration for David's words. The song is called Send a Little Love My Way. David has written 16 years with Bacharach and still does, but his collaboration with Mancini was the fastest of his career. David flew in from his Long Island home to meet with Mancini and producer-director Stanley Kramer on a Tuesday. The song was delivered Friday. David says even when he writes the lyrics to a Bacharach tune in five minutes, he usually mulls over them for a week.

★ ★ ★

Lorna Luft credits her father Sid Luft for her phenomenal rise in show business. Judy Garland's daughter says: "Daddy has all of the practicality Mama never had. He has made me hard working and less nervous than I would be without him."

★ ★ ★

You learn something new every day. Noel Coward once worked for D. W. Griffith in Hearts of Gold starring Lillian Gish. Noel played a wheelbarrow pusher and got about $2.50 per day. Wonder how many people in Hollywood knew that?

Note from Trish Van Devere down in the Bahamas, who is finding out that dolphins take direction better than human actors. She and husband George C. Scott are currently filming The Day of the Dolphin on the island of Abaco.

"I never knew what scene stealing was and neither did George until we worked with dolphins. It's incredible the way the dolphins act on spoken cues, so you get the idea they could do most anything they were commanded to do." Jack Oakie, the movies' greatest scene stealer, once had it written in his contract that he would never appear in a scene with dolphins or Lassie.

Bake-Off Success All in the Family

If mother can be a prize-winner, so can her daughter, and in the same national competition.

Mrs. Edith Fleischer and her daughter Karen, 17, of 920 Admirals Road, were among finalists in the second Pillsbury Bake-Off. Mrs. Fleischer gained a place among adult finalists with a recipe for lemon-cheese pizzas, and Karen made the student finals with shrimp and egg tarts.

A third Victoria district resident, Mrs. Ellen Moorhouse of 3381 Biscoe, baked her way to the adult finalist berth with a recipe for shrimp rolls oriental.

The finalists received $50 cash awards and expenses-paid weekends in Toronto for themselves and a guest each.

Mrs. Fleischer, mother of four, is still away on the trip. One of her sons said, however, it was the first time she had entered a cooking contest, and that she is an "experimental" cook. Contest sponsors quoted her as saying she and her daughter had a good deal of fun making up recipes for the Bake-Off.

Ellen Moorhouse

Mrs. Moorhouse is no novice at baking competitions. Growing African violets, biking, sewing and cooking contests are her hobbies, as well as camping with her family. She has two children.

Here are the Victoria women's entries:

LEMON-CHEESE PIZZAS
Mrs. Edith Fleischer

One can (8 oz.) refrigerated buttermilk or sweetmilk biscuits;

One-quarter cup lemon cheese;

One-quarter cup raisins;

Three-quarters cup finely chopped apple;

Oregano;

TEN 3-INCH PIZZAS

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Grease two cookies sheets. Separate biscuit dough into 10 biscuits. On prepared cookie sheets, pat each biscuit into a 3-inch round. Spread each with lemon cheese; sprinkle with raisins and top with chopped apple. Season each pizza with a dash of oregano and top with cheese square. Bake for 12 to 14 minutes until biscuit is golden brown and cheese is melted. Serve warm or cool.

Tip: Lemon curd or lemon spread, homemade or commercial, can be substituted for lemon cheese. Refrigerate any leftovers.

SHRIMP ROLLS ORIENTAL
Mrs. Ellen Moorhouse

Two tablespoons vegetable oil;

One-quarter cup finely chopped onions;

One-half cup finely chopped celery;

One-half cup finely chopped fresh mushrooms;

Edith Fleischer

Two tablespoons chopped green onion;

One-quarter teaspoon monosodium glutamate;

One tablespoon soy sauce;

Few grains pepper;

Two cans (8 oz. each) refrigerated buttermilk or sweetmilk biscuits;

Sauce

One-half cup green gage plum jam;

One and one-half teaspoons dry mustard;

One-eighth teaspoon salt;

One-eighth teaspoon garlic powder.

Prepare plum sauce, set aside. In medium frypan, heat oil and saute onions and celery for 1 minute. Stir in mushrooms and shrimp. (If shrimp are very large, cut in prices.) Remove from heat, add green onion and seasonings.

Separate biscuit dough into 20 biscuits. Stretch and crease each biscuit in centre to form a well. Place one heaping tablespoon shrimp mixture in each round Bring edges together to form a half-moon; firmly pinch edges together (this prevents separation during frying).

In large saucepan, heat 3 to 4 inches of oil to 375 degrees or until a 1-inch bread cube browns in 1 minute. Turning once, fry shrimp rolls, 3 or 4 at a time, in oil for 2 to 3 minutes until deep golden brown. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve hot with plum sauce. Refrigerate any leftovers.

Plum Sauce: In small mixing bowl, combine all sauce ingredients. If desired, plum sauce may be heated.

Latest Food Outlet Skips Warehousing

MONTREAL (CP) — Construction is under way here on what a major Canadian wholesaler describes as North America's first hypermarche, a merchandising concept developed in France.

William Sherman, executive vice-president of the Oshawa Group, the Toronto wholesaler building the hypermarche in suburban Lavel, described it as a fourth-generation retailing establishment.

In other words, it is the next step of development after the small independent store, the supermarket and the discount supermarket.

The hypermarche sells both food and non-food products under one roof, but the major innovation is that it does not separate the warehouse from the display area.

"In France, the North American supermarket concept never seemed to catch on," Sherman said. "They went right from the small shops to the hypermarches, which were a phenomenal success."

The Laval outlet, to cost $11 million and be completed in September, will be part of a shopping centre and will cover 245,000 square feet, twice the size of any supermarket in Quebec.

The Oshawa Group, a supplier of IGA stores and operator of 34 discount and department stores in Eastern Canada, is building the hypermarche in a joint venture with Mondev Corp., a Montreal developer.

Ray Wolfe, president of the Oshawa Group, said the main advantage of the hypermarche is that it will drastically reduce warehouse and distribution costs and therefore cut prices.

Rather than merchandise being stored in a separate warehouse, it is piled in special containers one ontop of another in the store itself.

The merchandise is bought directly from suppliers and primary producers who ship their goods in containers designed for floor display.

Stocks are brought within customer reach by fork-lift trucks, which zip about lowering merchandise from stacks.

The containers are not unpacked, but are merely opened up and customers choose their clothes or canned goods from racks or containers.

The Lavel hypermarche will have 40 computerized checkout counters which will give managers instant information on what is selling and how quickly.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: The letter signed Telling It Like It Is, Wish You'd Do The Same spurred me into action. I've been wanting to write to you for a long time.

Your approach to helping the alcoholic is a good one, Ann. Don't let anyone talk you out of it. Your readers should be told that having "love and compassion" does not mean creating a dependency which is undoubtedly what happened in the case of the woman who suffered the consequences of her husband's drinking for 38 long years.

Unfortunately there are millions of women like her. They help push the alcoholic into an early grave because they "love" him too much to do the most loving thing, which may be to "throw the bum out."

Too many wives continue to "rescue" an alcoholic husband because of a selfish martyrdom of their own choosing. Keep telling it like it is, Ann — S.E.H., executive director of an area council on alcoholicm.

Dear S.E.H.: Thanks for those kind words. I received much harsh criticism for my hard-line stand, but I am not backing down.

Dear Ann Landers: This letter is being written in the dead of winter. It's plenty cold here. My wife insists on sending our two daughters, eight and 10 years of age, to school bare-legged with only sandals on their feet. She insists that bare legs and feet build up an immunity to colds and other sicknesses.

My wife was raised in a foster home and had to walk to school in hand-me-down shoes that were either too small or too large. She often took her shoes off and went barefooted, even in very cold weather. The woman insists this accounts for her good health and the fact that she never gets colds. She wants to raise our daughters the same way.

The girls must have inherited their mother's rugged constitution because they don't get colds either, put please, Ann, tell her there is no truth in her theory. — J.W.

Dear J. W.: It's difficult to tell a person there is no truth in a theory when it seems to work.

According to my medical consultants, however, going bare-legged in the winter does not build up an immunity to anything. Your theory that the girls inherited their mother's rugged constitution is a likely one — plus the fact that she has them psyched out. I firmly believe that a positive attitude toward good health can go a long way toward keeping people well, Dad.

United Appeal Welcomes Partnership

Response to rehabilitation minister Norman Levi's statement in the B.C. legislature Friday afternoon that the government will help fund-raising community organizations like the United Appeal was generally enthusiastic.

Said Garth Homer, executive director of the Community Council: "We're very pleased about it. We're glad to see we're going to have an integrated program, something the Community Council has worked for for a long time.

"We're also glad he recognized the role of the voluntary agency and realized the importance of the volunteers' contribution.

"To have an integrated program can only be a forward step. It's not a matter of either-or but a partnership, and that's what the Community Council has been working for for the last five years—so I'm very pleased."

Peter Darling, first vice-president of the Community Chest, said that "I welcome the steps taken by Mr. Levi. It's a very positive approach.

"I'm glad he acknowledges that the United Appeal has a place in the community, and we will expect in the next few months to react to Mr. Levi's request that we come forth with identified services that we feel the government should take over."

Community Chest executive director Hugh Creighton was also pleased about the government's plans for helping such agencies as the United Appeal.

"As far as the suggestion he made that the Community Chest and the United Appeal present their recommendations as to which of their services should be funded by the government, we would be planning to make submissions in the next few weeks.

"The most significant thing he did was to follow the recommendations that the Community Council made in its report three years ago.

"The chief thing for us was the fact that he recognized the contributions made by thousands of volunteers."

Toddler Training Creates a Splash

It looked like a miniature version of the Olympics.

The locker room was full of squirming pre-schoolers struggling into shorts and bathing suits. An energetic toddler was breaking world records in the three-yard dash as he scooted along the hallway.

That was the scene at the Victoria YM-YWCA Thursday as the first sessions of a pre-school physical education workshop began.

A two-day event, the workshop was designed to give instructors in day care centres and nursery schools the latest information on teaching physical education to tots.

'Housewives Beckon Unwanted Products'

DAWSON CREEK (CP) — An official of a large food retailing chain said Thursday that housewives have encouraged the appearance of a "barrage" of unwanted product lines in Canadian supermarkets.

Cyril Keetch, director of food marketing for Woodwards stores told a conference of 50 agriculturalists discussing food prices that "someone needs to call a halt and return sanity to the market place."

He said consumers can choose from 11 brands of hamburger mixtures in supermarkets, although food consultants have shown these to have little actual food value.

Keetch said a housewife would frequently complain about the cost of meat, "yet she won't bat an eye when she picks up a bottle of stuff for $1.89 which turns toilet water blue."

Dog food had become the fastest growing product line for food retailers.

Keetch was one of six speakers at the annual Peace River agricultural co-ordinating conference here who explained problems at the different stages of the food marketing chain.

Murray Hawkins, assistant professor of economics at the University of Alberta, called for government policies for more Canadian content in food marketing.

Small farmers should be guaranteed access to the market, many large retailers were "tied up" in contracts with California growers.

U.S. Navy in Throes Of First Pregnancy

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The United States Navy is pondering the case of its first seagoing pregnant sailor.

It is also wondering what to do about a young couple from the same ship who want to get married.

The romancing is aboard the hospital ship Sanctuary, which went into service last fall with a mixed male and female crew.

The crew joined the ship in San Francisco in December. Shortly afterwards, the young woman — unmarried and identified only by rank of seaman — discovered she was pregnant.

The second case concerns a love affair between a male machinist's mate and a female radio operator, who met aboard the Sanctuary.

For Sunday Dinner Deluxe, Meatballs

Ottawa Tells How To Halve Family Food Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan says a family's good bill can be cut in half if it contents itself with such things as meatballs and gravy instead of prime rib of beef for Sunday dinner.

The minister released a statement showing the result of a survey in Ottawa that indicated the saving possible for housewives buying "bargain forms of food."

A Commons committee is investigating the reasons for the increasingly higher cost of food in Canada.

The statement said the Ottawa test showed grocery bills to feed a family of four can vary from $28.70 to $69.90 a week.

It gives examples of moderate, intermediate and generous menus, all nutritionally adequate.

"We are not suggesting that all Canadian families should eat the moderate menu," said Whelan. "There may be very valid reasons for a housewife to buy convenience foods, partially-processed items and the more expensive forms of food.

"The choice is the consumer's.

"What the study does show is the wide latitude that exists for Canadians to eat cheaply or expensively. Even the moderate diet is not the cheapest nutritionally-adequate diet that can be bought."

The moderate menu has such things as stewed chicken, sausages, fish sticks, meat loaf, macaroni and cheese, baked beans and meat balls and gravy for dinner.

An intermediate menu would have roast chicken, pork chops, baked fish, beef stew, cheese soufle, braised flank and pot roast.

The rich folks could have take-out fried chicken, roast loin of pork, salmon steaks, veal cutlets, take-out pizza, club steak and a prime rib of beef.

Sunday lunch on the moderate menu might be homemade vegetable soup, peanut butter sandwich and baked apple.

Those spending more could have canned vegetable soup, chicken pie, tomato slices, lettuce and stuffed baked apple.

The big spenders could have vichyssoise, cheese chicken and mushroom, patty shell, asparagus and Dutch apple pie.

The statement said all three menus feature the same basic ingredients but the type, form, processing and packing of items differed.

Savings were made by cutting out expensive forms of meat, frozen prepared foods, out-of-season fresh fruits and vegetables, bakery goods and by substituting items such as skim milk powder for fresh whole milk.

Russians Develop Artificial Caviar

MOSCOW (AP) — The Russians reported Friday they have developed a technique to mass-produce an artificial caviar. This is credited to research at a Moscow organization dedicated to creation of substitute foodstuffs.

Real caviar is scarce, due largely to pollution of spawning grounds where sturgeon females produce the eggs. Special shops here sell fresh caviar for $45.75 a pound — if you have hard currency to pay for it. In the West the product brings around $80 a pound.

Arena Issue Still Alive

Saanich has not dropped its proposal for a new ice arena for the municipality but is reserving the project for careful study before going to a public referendum, Ald. Bill Campbell said Friday.

Campbell said that reports that the ice rink was being dropped, following an in camera session of the public works committee Tuesday were unfounded.

"I am surprised to read that it has been dropped, it has not been dropped . . . I'm certainly in favor of an arena at the right time," he said.

But Campbell, who is chairman of the public works committee, said that the municipality was faced with over 30 high priority projects such as drainage and roads.

Even taking full advantage of provincial and federal grants a new rink would cost the ratepayer $250,000 - $300,000, he said. It was Saanich's duty to keep any mill rate increase due to inflation down to the lowest possible figure.

Campbell said, "If after careful study, council decides to build an arena, it could with careful planning and timing, if approved by both governments, be constructed in the 1973-74 winter period at considerable advantage moneywise."

Indoor recreation chairman Ald. Fred Severson said there was no question of council failing to approve the project in principle.

"Council has approved that it will go to referendum . . . there is no way of stopping it," he said.

Referring to reports that some aldermen were content to wait and see how arena plans developed in Oak Bay and Central Saanich before proceeding with the project, Severson said that it was his duty "to look after my own backyard" rather than wait for other municipalities to act.

Oak Bay's Brochure Plumps for Complex

A brochure giving details of plans, siting and financing of a proposed recreation centre in Oak Bay will go out to residents next week along with the regular newsletter, members of council decided at a special meeting this week.

No decision has been reached on whether to hold a referendum on the proposal, said Mayor Frances Elford.

Council is still assessing public opinion on the matter which will be discussed at an open council meeting before a decision is announced.

Columbia Treaty Costs Disclosed

The total capital cost of the dam projects involved in the Columbia River Treaty is estimated at $1,022,434,000 compared to an estimated cost in December 1963 of $410,671,000, Premier Dave Barrett said Friday.

The premier, who doubles as finance minister, made the figures available in answers to questions put on the order paper by Dr. Pat McGeer (L—Vancouver-Point Grey) and Hugh Curtis (PC—Saanich and the Islands.)

In answer to a question by Curtis, the premier said that when the treaty was entered into between the U.S. and Canada in 1963 the estimates, which included provision for inflation, were at the $410 million figure. The actual cost as of Dec. 31, 1972 for the treaty storage projects was $539,068,481, he said.

McGeer asked what the toal capital costs would be for the various projects and was told: Duncan storage, $32,170,000; Arrow storage, $196,027,000; Mica storage, $329,855,000; Mica at site generation, $460,384,000; and general costs, $3,998,000.

Of the total amount paid to date on the Duncan, Arrow and Mica projects — $539,068,481 — a total of $473,904,288 was paid for from money obtained from the U.S. under the Columbia River Treaty, Barrett said.

The balance of $65,164,193 was provided from B.C. Hydro and Power Authority borrowings with interest charged to the projects at the rates of 7 per cent per year on $31,815,686 and 7¼ per cent for year on $33,348,507, he said.

The premier said the government estimated it would spend $50,900,000 on the Duncan, Arrow and Mica storage projects in 1972 but the actual costs were $48,523,746. The government expects to pay out $17,537,000 on the projects this year, he added.

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Friday's answer — Every week in radio's golden days, that was Johnny who was "stepping out of thousands of store windows all over the country" on behalf of Philip Morris cigarettes. A generation still alive cannot hear Grofe's On the Trail without thinking of little Johnny.

Today's question — Radio's Camel Caravan combined The Nose and The Haircut as an off-beat but amusing comedy pair. Name both and, on a later Camel Caravan with Bob Hawk, what was a Lemac? Answers Tuesday.

"... So rush right out to your supermarket and ask for it. I SAID rush right out! NOW don't sit there like an oaf. YOU there! I'm talking to YOU!"

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

by IRA G. CORN JR.
World Champions — TEAM CAPTAIN

Today's hands were played in a match between Italy and Switzerland in the 1972 World Bridge Team Olympiad.

Compare your actions with those made at the table.

Question No. 1: You are South, both vulnerable, and hold:

♠AKQJ98
♥Q9532
♣A2

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	3♠	Pass
4♣*	Pass	4♥*	Pass
5♦*	Pass	5♥*	Pass

Answer: Bid the grand slam and you have a winner. Stop at six and you score yourself an overtrick. The entire hand:

WEST

SOUTH

♣A2

In the match the Swiss pair of Jean Besse and Tom Fenwick bid the grand slam and gained a bushel of points. In the replay Italians Benito Garozzo and Pietro Forquet not only failed to reach the grand slam, they played in six hearts rather than six spades. There was little to the play of the grand slam, since dummy's one-club loser was discarded on a high heart and declarer's hand was established by simply ruffing a club in dummy.

Question No. 2: You are South, opponents vulnerable, and hold:

♣AK542

What do you bid after:

South	West	North	East
1♣	Pass	2♦	Pass
2♠	Pass	3♣	Pass

Answer: Believe it or not, a pass is a sure way to get a plus score! Game or slam can be made, but you'll have to put on your "guessing shoes" to make the slam. The entire hand:

NORTH
♥AQ10

SOUTH

♣AK542

In the match Italy reached six clubs and after a heart lead went to East's king, declarer failed to find the winning play of pushing dummy's club jack through to smother the ten of clubs in West's hand. Instead he tried to drop a doubleton trump queen (a more likely chance) and went down.

The Swiss had a mixup and South (Jimmy Ortiz Patino) passed North's forcing bid and played in three clubs. The overtricks were scored glumly, but the Swiss felt a little better when they later found out that the Italians had bid slam and gone down. The Swiss went on to give Italy one of its worst pastings and won the match by 17-3 victory points.

North Island 'Poor People' Up in Arms

Two Week Loss of Car Ferry Means Dollar Loss to Villages

By JEAN SORENSEN
Colonist Correspondent

ALERT BAY — Merchants in three north Island communities face the prospect of losing thousands of dollars in business when the provincial government cuts off ferry service for two weeks.

The provincial government has ordered the north Island's only car ferry in for refit early in March and replaced it with a vessel that carries only foot passengers.

Alert Bay merchant Ray Rosback said he stands to lose a substantial amount of dollars and called the action "another sign of the ignorance of the government."

The loss of the Island Princess which runs from Sointula, Alert Bay, Port McNeill to Kelsey Bay will mean merchants have no way of getting trucked supplies to their store shelves.

Rosback said that the ferry service loss will not only mean a cutback in the stores sales, but he will have to still maintain wages to truck drivers who haul goods from Vancouver.

He estimates his loss will be several thousand dollars.

"But, it is going to effect everyone."

Rosback said the trucks running twice a week from Vancouver bring in food, clothing, hardware and building supplies. Other island merchants have come to depend on Vancouver Island based suppliers.

Rosback said several years ago when the Island Princess was called up for refit, he hired seine boats to meet the trucks on the Vancouver Island shore. Trucks were routed through a 150-mile logging road that can only be used at night. Workers loaded goods from the trucks to the boats and brought them across to Cormorant Island.

"The cost was considerable," he said.

Rosback said that unless the government comes up with a car ferry, he will be ordering "floatable goods only."

The ferry shut-down will also mean a halt to dairy trucks that run twice a week from Port McNeill to Cormorant Island.

Owner Bill Granoukos, who operates the North Island's only milk service, said he supplies all the milk and dairy products Cormorant Island uses.

Granoukos said he will not be cutting back on staff during the two week period and the company will bear the losses of trucker's wages.

He said during the 11 years the milk company has been operating it has built up "quite an investment" on Cormorant Island and will sustain a considerable loss.

"The government's ferry fleet gets bigger and bigger each year," Granoukos said. "Surely, it should be able to give us an automobile ferry."

Granoukos said he had heard the provincial government had been asked for a barge for vehicles.

Battle Is Finished Says IWA Chief

By RODNEY WADE
Colonist Correspondent

PORT ALBERNI — As far as the International Woodworkers of America, local 1-85 are concerned the battle is over.

Rival union, the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada had attempted to gain certification in the Somass Mill in Port Alberni. But Wednesday they withdrew their application from the department of labor.

Ten days ago, IWA local President Earl Foxcroft had predicted this would happen, saying that the PPWC did not have anywhere near the required 50 per cent plus one of the membership signed up.

Earlier this week, as the Feb. 15 deadline for filing applications approached the PPWC announced that they would not be applying to the department of labor for certification within the Alberni Plywood Division. Their reason was that they had run out of time.

Foxcroft denied that this was true. He stated that the PPWC had had plenty of time but simply had not been successful in their membership drive.

The Canadian union had made a concerted effort to sign up members even bringing in the national president Fred Mullen to help during critical periods.

In the early stages Mullen had exuded such confidence that many observers felt the IWA would be in grave danger of losing on a vote.

Contrary to expectations, Mullen did not make Canadianism a major item in his campaign. Rather he stressed the advantages of local autonomy, of smaller locals and of the deficiencies in the IWA structure and constitution. In the PPWC scheme of things the individual worker was said to have greater power to control the actions of the executive. The latter would, at local level be volunteers.

This contrasted with the IWA local officers who are trained and paid by the union.

Thursday, the day of the deadline the PPWC made a surprise move. They reapplied for certification for the Somass Mill even though they had withdrawn the earlier application concerning the same plant.

This would indicate that the PPWC confidently considers it has the necessary majority of 50 per cent plus one.

Foxcroft however does not think so.

"To re-apply in this way is facetious. They are setting worker against worker and plant against plant. In my opinion it is merely an attempt to help their campaign in Ladysmith and Duncan. As far as I'm concerned it's all over."

He added that it was now time for the union local to evaluate what had happened, what had been learned and how needed improvements that may exist could be dealt with.

UVic, in second place prior to Friday's play, defeated Lethbridge, 15-11, 15-5, and lost to Calgary, 10-15, 8-15, and UBC, 8-15, 15-3, 10-15.

New Concept in Eye Shadow

The creative heads at Revlon recently unveiled a new and startling concept in the field of eye shadow research. The official press release informs us that the new Ultima II shadows represent a careful homogenization of the best properties in both cream and powder shadows—resulting in a shadow that goes on (and stays on) as smoothly as powder, yet has the rich, gleaming patina effect of a cream.

As of press time, Ultima II shadows were available in three degrees of colour and frost:

Gold Rush Still on

Yet another manifestation of Spring's Gold Fever is this gold coloured oval watch from Dumal. Fashion conscious women are raving about its elegant casing, its textured finish, its champagne coloured dial. And at the same time, practical, time-conscious women are applauding its 17 jewel Swiss Incabloc movement, and its one year guarantee. Editorially speaking, we feel Dumal's watch represents the best of both worlds. And it is such a lovely shade of gold.

Efficiency Awards:

Shoulder Organizer Wins Top Prize

T9

"The Shoulder Organizer is undoubtedly the most efficient bag we've seen," said one of the judges. "Not only does it have a total of three handy outside pockets, but an adjustable strap as well. And of course, the charming front overflap with compartments for credit cards, plus the colour co-ordinated cheque book holder and pen, made it an obvious first choice."

There was, however, some jealousy among the other contestants, who felt that the Shoulder Organizer's good looks counted as an unfair advantage. The rumour is being investigated.

Silkworms Sign with Echo Scarves

T10

The Universal Union of Silkworms recently signed a contract with Echo Scarves of New York, agreeing to continue producing the pure silk scarves for which both have become famous. The Silkworm Union stipulated that Echo must carry on its tradition of designing unique and beautiful patterns (like the checked group shown above) for their scarves. At the same time, Echo insisted that the Silkworms continue to produce the finest silk possible. Both parties agreed to the other's demands. You can see that for yourself, at the Bay.

Spanish Trend Continues

T13

The growing mania for all things Spanish is evident in the Bay's flamenco dancer shawl of 100% Acrylic. Fashioned in a daringly open weave, this triangular charmer has been setting pulses racing from coast to coast. Observers say it adds a devastatingly provocative air to even the most demure of evening gowns.

Reliable sources tell us, however, that the shawl in question is actually made in England. To which we can only say, "Que sera, sera."

Provincial COURT

The much-delayed preliminary hearing in Victoria Provincial Court of a joint two-count charge of heroin conspiracy against five persons is expected to end in sittings which were set Friday for April 27 and 30 and May 1 and 3.

The dates were set by Judge William Ostler in the presence of lawyers for all five accused persons although one of the five, Robert Gerald Langer, 30, is unreported since his escape Feb. 6 from the Wilkinson Road jail.

Another of the five, Sharron Yvonne Dannenberg, 28, no fixed adress, was formally charged Friday with failing to appear at the hearing Feb. 5. She had been unreported between that date and last Wednesday, when RCMP found her in a cabin in the Sprout Lake area.

She was remanded to next Wednesday for plea on that charge along with an application for bail.

Mrs. Jo Ann Linda Waters, 23, address not known, received a suspended sentence and an 18-month probationary term from Ostler. She pleaded guilty earlier to four charges containing six counts of false pretences involving less than $200 and six of obtaining taxi transportation by fraud. The 12 bad cheques brought her $211.82 in goods and taxi fares between Dec. 16 and Jan. 29.

□

In the court section of Judge F. S. Green, a suspended sentence and a one-year probationary term were set for Mrs. Catherine Petrie, 20, of 163 Olive. She was found guilty Feb. 12 after a trial on a Victoria charge of theft involving less than $200—a $119 coat taken Dec. 29 from a woman during an argument over a debt.

Albert Lloyd Evans, 61, of 254 Michigan, was fined $250 by Ostler following his plea of guilty to a Victoria charge of theft involving less than $200 — the shoplifting Thursday from Simpsons Sears of half a dozen items worth a total of $19.19.

□

Ivan Carl Flohr, 20, of Grand Prairie, Alta., received a suspended sentence and a six-month probationary term after pleading guilty to a charge of possession of a narcotic — a small amount of hashish found Thursday evening when police checked him in the 1200 block Langley.

Two persons were fined following pleas of guilty to separate charges of impaired driving in Esquimalt. They were Larry George Gillis, 23, CFB Esquimalt, stopped Jan. 13 and fined $400, and Hugh Joseph Pritchard, 45, of 1716 Haultain, stopped Jan. 12, and fined $350.

Grinder Boosting Optics

The federal observatory on Little Saanich Mountain has plans to go into the lens-grinding business in a big way.

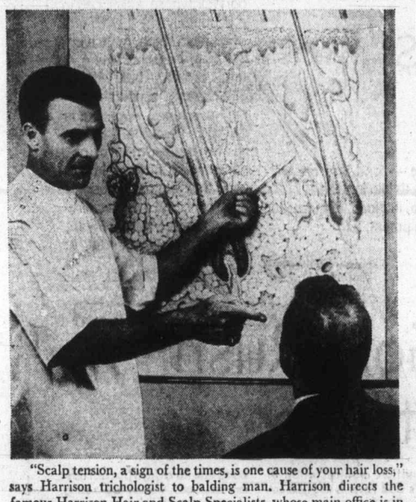
"This new addition will make it possible to house the grinding machine that was built to grind the 157-inch mirror for the Queen Elizabeth telescope," he said. The machine has been stored at Vancouver since the big observatory project planned for the B.C. Interior was cancelled by the federal government in 1968.

He said the mirror grinder was "a good machine" and it was decided about a year ago that the observatory's optical shop should be expanded to accommodate the grinder.

He said there are discussions currently going on between Canada and France for joint construction of a large astronomy station at the 15,000-foot level on Mt. Mauna Kea on the island of Hawaii.

Wright indicated if the discussions are successful the optical shop at the observatory in Saanich will grind the 140-inch mirror for the needed telescope.



"Scalp tension, a sign of the times, is one cause of your hair loss," says Harrison trichologist to balding man. Harrison directs the famous Harrison Hair and Scalp Specialists, whose main office is in Vancouver. They are sending a specialist here to advise men and women how to correct hair troubles by home treatment.

New home treatment methods for preventing baldness — and improving the appearance of thicker hair will be demonstrated in Victoria this Monday and Tuesday, February 19 and 20.

In their announcement, they named trichologist K. Dowdall to conduct the Victoria clinic. Mr. Dowdall will personally examine hair-worried men and women from 1:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m. Monday and Tuesday at the Sussex Apartment hotel.

NO OBLIGATION

"Your only obligation is to yourself—to free your mind of worries about excess hair loss, dandruff, itching or other scalp disorders, by learning how to take care of your hair. If your trouble is beyond the scope of Harrison treatment, we will frankly tell you so.

"We cannot help men who are slick-bald after years of gradual hair loss. But where your scalp still creates hair, we can at least improve what you have. The important thing is: DON'T WAIT UNTIL IT'S TOO LATE!

"Our biggest problem is not in doing what we claim to do. But to overcome the average man's initial skepticism is sometimes difficult. He's usually quite desperate by the time he nerves himself to see a Harrison trichologist. He's 'tried everything'. So he starts consoling himself with one of the old superstitions about hair:

"That men naturally lose hair as they get along in years; that nothing can be done to prevent excess hair loss — and a lot of other notions that we know are not true today."

FREE SCALP EXAMINATION

See Mr. Dowdall in person. Learn how baldness can be avoided and hair growth encouraged. The new Harrison method permits you to save and improve your hair in the privacy of your own home.

For an examination and discussion of your hair problems ask the desk clerk at the Sussex Hotel Monday or Tuesday between 1:00 p.m. and 8:00 p.m. for Mr. Dowdall's suite number. You don't need an appointment. Examinations are given in private.

Heroic Beginnings is the title as CBC series Images of Canada goes on the CBC at 9:30 p.m. Wednesday to present the first of six programs this season and historian Donald Creighton offers Victoria's Craigflower Manor as one of those beginnings. The show will inspect the white man's earliest settlements across Canada from Fort Louisbourg to Victoria.

An Older Image

Husband Hunting

Things other than internecinal strife occur in Dublin, if ABC's Wednesday movie is to be believed. Lee Remick stars as a wife who searches the streets and bogs of Dublin for a husband who has vanished mysteriously in And No One Could Save Her (Channel 4 at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday). It was filmed in Dublin, presumably between battles.

Screenwriter Turns to TV

The rule has always been that the better screenwriters start in television, then move up to feature motion pictures, forever keeping their backs turned to the medium that gave them their first break.

That's one of the reasons television is not as good as it could be. However, viewers who turn the dial to Channel 2, CBS at 8 p.m. March 15, are going to be in for a rare treat. The screenwriter and executive producer is none other than the talented Abby Mann who has come back to television for the startling Markus-Nelson Murders.

I asked Abby what possessed him to return to television after writing such heavyweight feature films as Judgment at Nuremburg (which won him an Academy Award), The Detective, Ship of Fools, The Condemned of Altona, and A Child is Waiting, to name a few.

He grinned and said, "Well, I originally wrote The Marcus-Nelson Murders as a feature motion picture for theatres, but every studio in town was terrified of it and I couldn't make a deal. Television, or I should say CBS, wasn't afraid and we tied in with Universal and are making it."

Inside the Tube With Bill Mahan

The Murders is the longest motion picture ever to be made and shown exclusively for television. It will air for three solid hours. Its stars are Jose Ferrer, Telly Savalas, and Marjoe Gortner — then Harriet Karr (Abby Mann's wife) plays a small but important featured part.

Abby Mann is a kind of crusader. He believes strongly in what he writes and has refused to write trash, no matter what the remuneration.

His interests lie in making film that not only entertains and is financially successful, but will have some humanitarian effect.

There are many things he wants to do in the future. He'd like to write a screenplay on the Vietnam war, but anyone in the know, including Abby Mann, is aware that no studio will touch that subject. All the moguls have gotten together and put a ban on the subject.

Even though Vietnam is an important part of history, it is doubtful that a film will be made about it for a long time, if ever. So, temporarily at least, Abby has settled for an honest love story titled Tuesdays and Thursdays which will go into production sometime in '73. This film is also in connection with Universal, only it's not for the tube until it has had its runs in the theatres.

Lastly, Abby plans to finally write a book. After it's published he will write his own screenplay, then produce the film, seeing it through from the absolute beginning.

I wish we could get more talents like Abby Mann to come back to television now and then. We need more quality film like The Marcus-Nelson Murders on the tube and we need more gutsy guys like Mann. It's no secret that television plays to the largest audiences in the world. They are entitled to the best — at least once in a while.

Best Skaters on Today

The best skaters in Europe will display their cosiderable talent to Canadian viewers on Saturday, Feb. 17, and Saturday, February 24, from 2:00-3:00 p.m. both days, when CBC-TV telecasts the European Figure Skating Championships, held in Cologne, Germany. The first week's show will feature highlights of the competition, while the second weeks' will feature the exhibition put on by the different champions at the end of the championships.

Showbiz Worrisome On News Programs

By BRUCE LOWTHER

Most people will agree there is something wrong about news on television but they won't be able to put in words exactly what they think it is.

As a veteran of 10 years in broadcasting as well as 17 years in newspapering, I have not been unsettled so much by the occasional bias shown by the reporter — I know from experience that's inevitable.

It's the show biz aspect of TV news that is a worrisome thing and by that I mean CBS has shown in the past it is concerned more with what Walter Cronkite looks like and how he speaks rather than with what he says.

As an example of what I mean, let's examine the situation in TV news at San Francisco, where station KGO was for a long time third in the ratings for the money-making 11 p.m. news slot to rival stations KPIX and KRON.

Then KGO went on the "happy news" format that is springing up in all areas of North American TV — the emphasis was on the bright side of the news so viewers wouldn't be depressed. In other words, it wasn't what was said that counted but how it was said.

KGO's rating shot up to a point where they were at last word nearly double those of both rivals.

The results? First, KPIX fired 14-year anchorman John Weston and seven-year co-announcer Rod Sherry. Next, KPIX dumped program director Bill Jackson because he couldn't come up with a format that matched "a happy news" even though he spent lots of money on fancy sets and such.

Both KPIX and KRON loosened their formats enough to work in some happy news. And finally, 13-year KRON anchoreman Art Brown came back from a holiday to find he had been fired, too.

Now, KGO is working on some outlandish ideas in an effort to break its virtual tie with KPIX in ratings for the even more prestigious 6 p.m. news hour.

A number of makeup artists were brought in from Universal Studios in Hollywood to redo the KGO anchorman from chin to top of the head. New on-camera clothing is being designed for the KGO voices.

Even those who disagree with my theory on the ills of TV news should feel sorry for such as Weston and Brown. Having worked for more than a decade to present what they undoubtedly felt was an honest picture of the news, they are unceremoniously dumped for a gimmicky, hooked-up look at one tiny side of the world — the happy side.

It's not what you say in San Francisco but how you say it. And I'm not saying viewers should not see what they want but what "experts" feel they must see — show them what they want, by all means, but under the name of show biz, not news.

Anyone in broadcasting who says there also is something wrong with newspapering will get no argument from me. But that's another story and this is a newspaper's supplement about broadcasting.

Movie Queens Finished

MM Wouldn't Make It

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Marilyn Monroe would not have become a star today because she was putting on an act, says up-and-coming Joanna Cameron, a young beauty who belongs to a different generation of actresses.

"It has nothing to do with Marilyn's talents or her beauty," said Joanna.

"But the Grace Kelly thing is all over. Audiences in 1973 are much too sophisticated for plastic or artificial stars off screen. Marilyn was sort of a fantasy. That's fine if you can make it real.

"These days an actress has to be a female first and a performer or artist afterward."

Joanna qualifies so being feminine. And at the age of 24 impressively aware of the tastes and preferences of her generation in the individuals who appear in movies and television.

"There aren't any major female movie stars because audiences have refused to accept the stereotyped, idealized movie queens of the old days. They don't believe the falsifications anymore.

Joanna portrays an interesting character in The All American Beauty Contest, a television movie in which she wins a national beauty contest. Many of the girls in the film are former beauty pageant contestants.

"I've never entered a beauty contest," said the outspoken brunette. "They're ridiculous. They don't encourage individuality. And they have the same ancient idea about females — the 1959 American princess.

"The character I play has contempt for the contest. Even if I were guaranteed winning I wouldn't enter a beauty pageant.

Pelletier's Green Paper Tightens Rein on Cable

OTTAWA (UPI) — Communications Minister Gerard Pelletier says his "green paper" on communications policy will give a greater role to the provinces in the cable television field.

Pelletier made the statement in an address to a joint meeting of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters and the Canadian Cable Television Association. It was his first major address since becoming communications minister last November.

"We intend to make proposals which will reflect the growing interests of the provinces in the development of coaxial cable systems and which will give these interests a means of expression," Pelletier said.

"The degree to which some, or all, of provincial or local interests may be reconciled with the national interest of maintaining a strong Canadian broadcasting system, will be determined in discussions between the two levels of government during the next few months."

Provincial governments, particularly Quebec, have recently been escalating demands for greater control of cable systems. They maintain such systems are not constitutionally under federal jurisdiction and should be regulated by the provinces.

Pelletier said his upcoming statement, covering the whole range of broadcasting and telecommunications, would not be a "white paper" stating firm government policy. Instead, it would be a "green paper" of proposals subject to further discussion.

The paper is scheduled to be made public sometime in March, officials said.

The minister said he hoped the policy proposals would be "a vital first step in clearing the air" and would demonstrate to all "that governments can co-operatively take the steps necessary to provide a continued environment for progress."

When Pelletier switched from the secretary of state portfolio to communications, he took with him responsibility for broadcasting policy and the Canadian Radio-Television Commission.

His address gave no direct hint whether the policy proposals would include a more formal merger of the "software" functions of the CRTC with the "hardware" functions of the telecommunications planning, development and regulation in the communications department.

Pelletier said there were two pressing reasons for changing the existing policy framework for communications in Canada — the growing consumer movement and the introduction of new technologies such as home computer terminals using cable TV systems.

Consumerism has led to "a growing feeling in Canada that public utilities have somehow escaped the legitimate est," he said. New technologies could lead to "pressure to use the excess communications capacity of coaxial systems to do more than distribute off-air broadcast signals to households," he said.

The minister said "the experience of recent years seems to indicate that we may have to do more than improve our objectives in telecommunications and broadcasting by altering the frames of reference of federal regulatory and operating agencies.

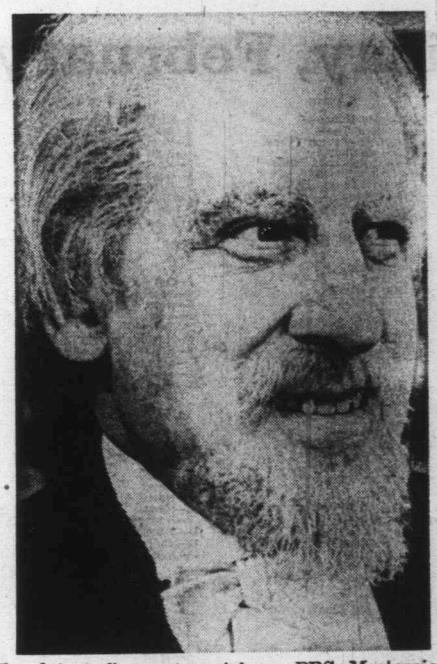
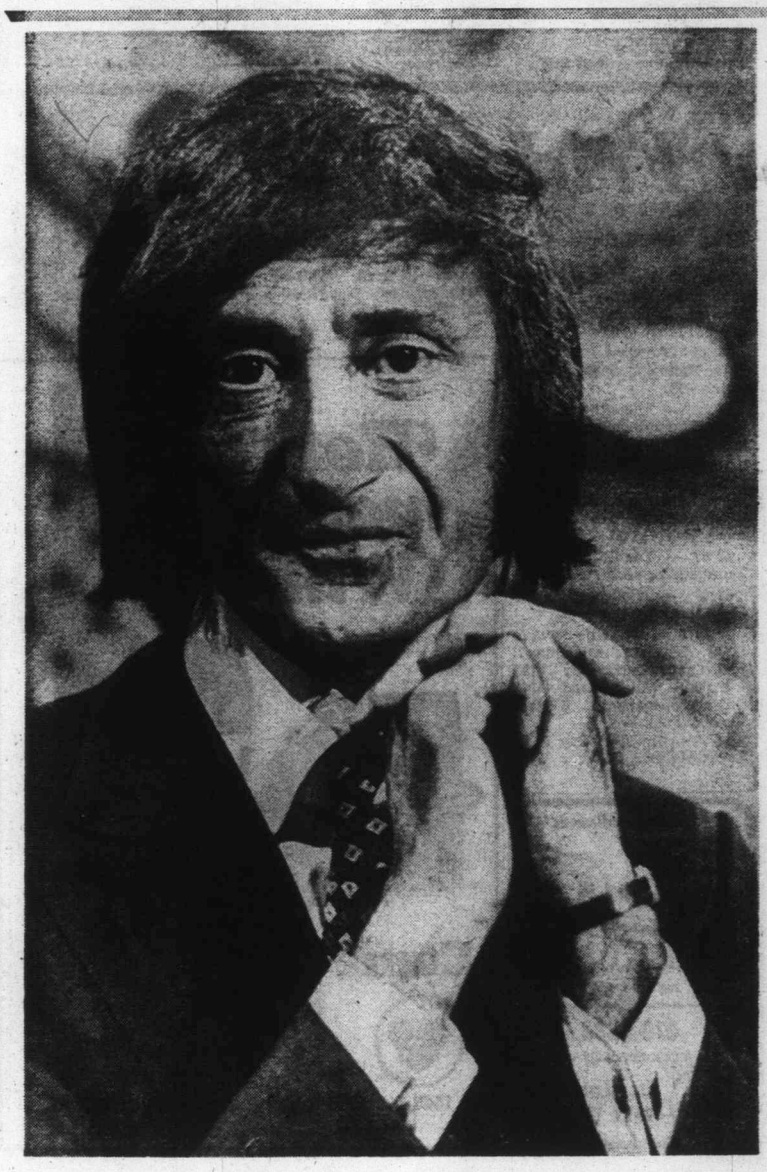
Savage Portraits



The latest five-part serial on PBS Masterpiece Theatre is Point Counter Point, Aldous Huxley's savage portrait of corruption, violence and sterile intellectualism in the 1920s. Lyndon Brook portrays Philip Quarles, a young novelist who represents Huxley himself, while other stars are Max Adrian and Noel Dyson. It's on Channel 9 at 9 p.m. Sunday and Friday.



A Funny Looking Man

Many entertainers talk like funny men but few look like it—one of those rare beings is Charlie Callas, the skinny and rubbery American who makes outrageous noises and imitates everything from a giraffe to a pickle. Callas will be the guest on the George Kirby comedy program at 9 p.m. Thursday on Channel 8.

Shakespeare's Story on Film

LONDON (Reuter) — British and Italian television companies will make a $6.25-million film series on William Shakespeare.

The production was announced Monday by Sir Lew Grade, head of the British independent company, Associated Television ATV, which is to co-operate with the Italian network Radiotelevisione Italiana (RAI), in producing 12 hour-long episodes, each costing more than $500,000.

Sir Lew said the high costs were largely due to filming taking place at the actual locations of Shakespeare plays — Venice.

The Merchant of Venice, Verona Two Gentlemen of Verona, Elsinore, Denmark Hamlet, and Scotland Macbeth.

The programs, which will be shown in 1975, will be based on the biography of Shakespeare by Anthony Burgess.

Sir Lew also announced that ATV has bought two major film productions of Shakespeare plays and that they have already been bought by American Broadcasting Co. for showing in the United States.

They are the Royal Shakespeare Company's Anthony and Cleopatra and the national Theatre Company's The Mercant of Venice.

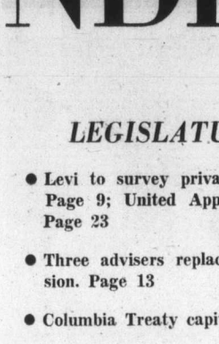
B.C. To Run Welfare For Region

By BARBARA McLINTOCK
Colonist Legislative Staff

All welfare and children's services in the Capital Region will be taken over by the provincial government, probably by August, Rehabilitation Minister Norman Levi announced Friday.



Levi

Levi told the Legislature that the move would be a pilot project, and would likely be extended to other areas of the province later, eventually embracing the whole of B.C.

The immediate takeover in the Capital Region would be by the province, he said, but ultimately the services would be turned over to the Capital Regional Board to administer.

The changeover to regional control might take place within two to three years, he suggested, as soon as the region has the staff and expertise to provide high-quality services.

The main agencies to be taken into provincial control are the Victoria city social services department, the Saanich municipal social services department, and the Family and Children's Service, a private, non-profit agency serving most of the region now.

Welfare services for the rest of the Capital Region are already mainly run by the provincial government, through offices in Esquimalt, Langford, Sidney and Sooke.

Levi said the Capital Region had been chosen for the pilot project because it had, on its own, undertaken a study which recommended integration of welfare and children's services, either under the region, the province, or some newly-created body.

The study he referred to was one commissioned by the regional board and undertaken by the Community Council of Greater Victoria in late 1970 and early 1971. Although it originally was received with considerable enthusiasm in the Victoria area, no action was taken on it because of strong opposition from the Family and Chil-

Banker's Daughter Abducted

FREEPORT (AP) — Bahamian police said Friday two men have kidnapped a Canadian banker's four-year-old daughter and demanded a $250,000 ransom.

Andrea Spencer was taken Thursday night by two masked men armed with pistols who burst into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Spencer and demanded the money, police said.

Authorities said the Spencer child was dressed in pyjamas and had just finished her afternoon nap when the armed men seized her.

On Jan. 14, 1972, an armed man forced his way into the Spencer home in Lucaya and ordered Spencer to get him $300,000 from the bank's vault.

Strachan Sees Lower Rates

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislative Staff

British Columbia's proposed new government-run auto insurance plan scheduled to begin operation March 1, 1974, will be universal, non-profit and a monopoly.

It will function under the umbrella of a new crown corporation, to be known as the Insurance Corporation of British Columbia, which will enable the government to also enter the general insurance field but in this case on a profit-making basis in competition with private firms.

Highways Minister Robert Strachan introduced legislation setting up the ICBC and an accompanying Automobile Insurance Act, establishing the car insurance plan, in the house Friday. The ICBC Act gives the government the power to take over any insurance company or enter joint operations in the field.

Private Firms

The government plan virtually wipes out the $135 million car insurance business in this province although Strachan later told a news conference licenced corporations and agents have until Oct. 1 to make application to act as agents for the B.C. scheme.

Asked whether private car insurance firms would receive any compensation from the government, Strachan replied: "We will meet with them and discuss the transition period. But they (the industry) have been telling us for years and years they've been losing money. Were doing them a favor. They should be paying us."

The legislation contains no premium rates under the proposed new plan. Strachan told reporters "massive computerization" is required to come up with a rate structure because it will be tied to licence plate sales and individual driving records as well as to age, risk category and geographic location.

Few Months

But the minister predicted rates in all driver categories will be "generally" lower when the plan comes into effect next year and promised to give some "ballpark figures" to the Legislature when the bills are being considered in committee later in the current session.

The cabinet will determine each specific class of general insurance which the crown corporation will undertake.

Insurers Shaken, Alarmed

Expressions of alarm and shock came from both the insurance industry and political opponents in the wake of Friday's announcement that the Barrett government intends to set up Canada's biggest insurance corporation.

Legislation to put the government into the car insurance field had been expected, but the move into general insurance as well came as a surprise ande aroused some of the strongest criticism.

Ian Rendle, manager of Gardner Agencies Ltd., in Victoria, summed up the feelings of many in the industry when he said he had several views of the proposed legislation, and all of them were of alarm.

Rendle said he was disturbed by the part of the legislation which gives the cabinet the power to order organizations which receives provincial grants or loans—such as school boards, hospital boards, municipalities and universities among others — to

The Heroin Trail

Deaths from heroin addiction are only a part of the tragedy that heroin has brought to our society. They include addicts whose lives have been wrecked. They include those who, triggered by heroin usage, have experimented disastrously with other dangerous drugs. They include those who have been assaulted or robbed by addicts who stole to pay for their habits. And, finally, the victims also include the parents and relatives of the addicts. To all this must be added other costs, necessary ones, for treatment, prevention and enforcement — costs that might be applied to other social problems if heroin did not exist.

It was with these facts in mind that Newsday, a New York-area newspaper, decided more than a year ago to make a major commitment to telling the full story of heroin, the drug that seemed to be the most merciless of all in the punishment it inflicted upon its users.

The full story, Newsday decided, should focus not only on the victims of heroin but on those who had profited by it. It is generally known that millions of dollars are made each year by heroin profiteers, but little information has been made public about specific individuals, systems or methods that were operating for financial gain to bring heroin to its ultimate victims.

"Covering" heroin meant going to its source, principally the poppy fields of Turkey. It meant following its route to North America, principally through Europe and especially in France, where the morphine base derived from the opium poppy was converted into heroin in illegal laboratories.

The first three months for the three-man Newsday team were spent in Turkey. They lived in a rented house on the outskirts of Istanbul. Their investigations led them to the poppy fileds of Anatolia and the cafes of Sofia, Bulgaria, as well as to the nightclubs and restaruants of Istanbul.

The trio was followed on several occasions; they were threatened; their homes were tapped; they found themselves on guard and suspicious of apparently normal actions by people who they didn't know.

In September, after driving through Europe along the route taken by narcotics smugglers, they set up a second base, in the seaside town of Lavandou, on the south coast of France near Marseilles.

In the meantime, a second team began forming to report out the heroin story in the United States, concentrating on New York and Washington, but also travelling as far as Mexico, Miami and Montreal in search of the American connection.

The overseas group returned Dec. 15.

The story on "The Heroin Trail" will be told as a continuous narrative, starting in the Sunday Colonist. It is organized along the route that the drug takes from the poppy fileds of Afyon province in Turkey to the arms of the addict in American cities. Each Day's story will focus on a specific aspect of the business of heroin.

Safety Record Dates Back to 1958

PORT ALICE — Electricians at the Rayonier Canada Ltd. pulp mill here have applied to the B.C. Safety Council for the coveted Award of Distinction representing 420,000 injury free man-hours.

Frank Hieronymi of Port Alice, safety supervisor in the electrical department, said the award signifies no lost-time injuries since Oct. 22, 1958.

Hieronymi said that from information received from the B.C. Safety Council that only on one previous occasion, in 1970, was this award ever achieved by an electrical crew in the B.C. pulp industry.

The department consists of 14 men who are responsible for the installation and maintenance of electrical services at the mill. The system consists of 110, 220, and 440 volt circuits as well as a 6,900 volt high tension power line from the mill to Victoria Lake pumping station.

The crew was also in charge of maintaining power to the old Port Alice townsite located four miles from the mill, he said. The new townsite is now under the auspices of B.C. Hydro.

Electrical superintendent Rowland Scott is the member of the staff with the most seniority and has worked in the department for 11 years. Others in charge of maintaining a firm safety program are foreman Peter Roleink and shop safety captain Lorne Butters.

Hieronymi said the department has an "extremely good safety program" and employees had developed a strong safety conscious attitude. Meetings are held once a month to discuss working methods, he said.

New employees are indoctrinated into the safety program and are given tours of the mill, departments, and areas where safety hazards could result.

Hieronymi said that of the 20 departments in the mill, a total of 12 are holding valid B.C. Safety Council Awards. Six departments hold gold awards.

The electrical department holds awards of bronze for 46,000 hours, silver for 93,000 hours, gold for 140,000 hours and award of honor for 280,000 hours.

Hieronymi said the award should arrive in a month and a dinner is planned for the employees at Quatsino Chalet.

Naval Chief Moving

Rear Admiral Richard Leir is expected to be appointed to defence headquarters late this summer in a routine shift of senior Canadian Forces officers.

Leir, who was named rear admiral and appointed to the position of commander of Maritime Command Pacific in 1970, is expected to leave his Esquimalt base about mid-July to take up his appointment at Ottawa early in September, according to a military source.

Leir has had a colorful naval career, and last May when Esquimalt celebrated its Diamond Jubilee, was made a freeman of the municipality.

The 51-year-old admiral was born in Penticton and joined the navy as a cadet in 1940.

As a junior officer Leir witnessed the sinking of the British battle cruiser HMS Hood by the German battleship Bismarck during the Second World War and also survived the sinking of the battleship HMS Prince of Wales and the cruiser HMS Exeter by the Japanese.

He was officially listed as dead for three years while he was a prisoner of the Japanese.

Two years ago Leir pointed out while discussing transportation of Alaskan oil by large tankers or through a pipeline, that as top military officer in B.C. he believed it much easier to defend a pipeline than a flotilla of tankers.

Funeral Home Cleared

PARKSVILLE — Parksville Village council has approved a zoning amendment bylaw to allow for the construction of a funeral home on property at the west end of the village. A letter in regard to this was received from the Advisory Planning Commission advising that the group had no hesitation in recommending this site for the purpose providing that the premises are attractive and suitably landscaped.

Also that a 33 foot road allowance be dedicated but not constructed along the northern boundary of the property. The agreement with council will be in the form of a land use contract.

Three readings were given to a sewer rates amendment bylaw which will bring the monthly rates for mobile homes in line with ordinary residential rates within the village.

A motion was approved at a recent council meeting for a bylaw to be prepared to increase the indemnities for the mayor and aldermen. The proposed increases are from $2,000 to $2,500 per year for the mayor and from $1,000 to $1,250 per year for each alderman.

A public hearing on a proposed land use contract with Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Baker regarding a former rest home property known as Holmwood preceded the meeting.

UBC Faculty Dean:

World's Eyes On Forestry

By KLAUS MUENTER
Colonist Correspondent

DUNCAN — Education of foresters for total resource management. This was the topic of an address by UBC dean of forestry, Joseph Gardner, Friday during the 25th annual meeting of the Association of B.C. Professional Foresters at Duncan.

He said that until recent years the public had little interest in forest resources and appeared satisfied the forest service and company foresters were doing an adequate job for protection.

"Now public attitudes have changed. Proper land use planning and environment management are an important public concern and as a result forestry practice is in the limelight. During the last 20 years, forward planning of our foresters and forest service, progressive new utilization policies and industrial enterprise have made possible a major expansion of the industry, have greatly reduced wood waste and made major improvements in regeneration.

Population Grows

"The material and social benefits to our rapidly growing population have been enormous. Small wonder that the criticism of the environmentally concerned has evoked some ill-considered and defensive responses. Our greatly expanded, mobile and affluent population, sharing world-wide concern about environmental maintenance in a province shrunk considerably by improved transportation, is now well aware of the necessary logging operations which only a few years ago were usually far removed from the public view.

"The population reaction is that logging makes a mess, does lasting ecological damage and should be severely restricted. The answer is proper land use planning and education of the public, the worker and the forest resource manager. Certainly we must be encouraged that at last the public is concerned with proper management over the long term and we must see to it that the appropriate land use planning is provided for and is done," Gardner said.

Team Effort

He stressed that the various agencies concerned with the forests should co-operate and co-ordinate their efforts rather than competing with each other and "there must be integration and synthesis rather than division."

He said it is fruitless to have a sophisticated management plan it is not observed. The dean pointed out that at UBC, which has one of the best forestry faculties in Canada, major changes in curriculum, courses, teaching, staffing, accommodation and research have been accomplished in the past eight years reflecting the anticipated needs of today and the future.

New Courses

In keeping with advances in knowledge and the broadened concept of resource management many new courses have been introduced and long established courses have been upgraded, he said.

"New courses include watershed management, recreation management, wildlife management, fisheries management, forest ecology, computer technology application, operations research methods, environmental management and land classification.

"In general, we have attempted to make all the courses more intellectually challenging and rigorous, believing that a capacity for reasoning, independent thinking and problem solving is one of the more important attributes of a graduate," the dean said.

Gardner said there are many needs and an important one is a better public image of the professional forester. One of the important challenges to foresters is skillful communication with the public. Underlining the need for high quality training of professional foresters, Gardner said "it is evident that the demand for wood will intensify.

Big Demand

"Wood is a biodegradable, renewable resource requiring relatively little energy to process compared to other materials in a world of diminishing sources of energy and raw materials. This, coupled with wood's versatility, aesthetic appeal and easy utility guarantees increased demands for it in the near and distant future.

"Since the land base for timber production is continuously being diverted to other purposes it is certain that full advantage will have to be taken of advances in fertilization, genetics, thinning and other management techniques.

"This will require a continuing and increased supply of professional foresters primarily concerned with, and skilled in timber production operations and management, in forest environmental protection and in silviculture. In short, I believe there will be significantly increased demand in the future for graduate foresters both the generalistic multi-purpose resource manager and the specialist practitioner."

Wellburn Elected

The three-day annual meeting of the association of B.C. Professional Foresters was attended by 140 foresters from across the province, and 40 of their wives. Twenty public guests took part in the luncheon and in a public forum.

Vernon Wellburn, forestry faculty teacher at UBC, was elected as the new association president, succeeding Ken Williams, chief forester of Weldwood of Canada. Gerry Burch, B.C.Forest Products, was presented with the forester of the year award.

Levi Weighs Private Charities Takeover

Province To Feel Out Fund-Raising Climate

By BARBARA McLINTOCK

All United Appeals in B.C. have been asked to send to Rehabilitation Minister Norman Levi a list of the organizations and programs they now fund which they would like the government to help in financing.

In a speech to the Legislature Friday, Levi said he felt the government should be picking up the tab for more community services, and wanted to know which ones the appeals themselves felt should be government-financed.

the appeals, which include Community Chests and United Community Services groups throughout B.C., should be grateful for the move, he said, because each year they're having more and more trouble meeting their goals.

It was New Democratic Pary policy that "services to people" should be paid for out of general provincial revenue, not by land taxes nor by voluntary donations, he said, and he intended to move in that direction.

However, he emphasized that he still thought there would be a place for volunteer donations in the community services field.

It was his own idea, he said, that the role for United Appeals would be the funding of innovative and experimental community programs, and he thought the agencies should be moving more and more into this field.

"Once a service is proved out, then the government must assume a role," he told the house.

But he added outside the house the government will move relatively slowly into the whole field of picking up projects now funded by United Appeals.

The general total donations by volunteers in the province now are about $10.5 million a year, and he didn't anticipate the government taking over $1 million of this within the next year.

He said he expected to have the co-operation of all B.C.'s United Appeals in the changeover of some services.

If he didn't get it, then "sooner or later" the appeals would be coming to the government to ask them to pick up the deficits left when the fund-raising campaigns had fallen far shot of their goals, and the matter could be dealt with then.

While the transition period was going on, Levi suggested, the appeals could do far better by funding only about half the number of agencies they are now supplying money to.

For example, if an appeal now finances 35 agencis but is having to cut back its grants to all of them because of lack of money, it would be better to decide which are the best 18 or 20 of the agencies and give them enough money to provide a really high-quality service.

Outside the house later, Levi said that agencies or programs whose funding was taken over by the government would have to be higly accountable for that money.

Each year the services the agencies provided would be reviewed, and ones that didn't come up to standard would be dropped. There would be no sense of "well, they got money from us last year. So they'll automatically get it again next year," he said.

He also mentioned his department was considering introducing a three-year budgeting system for some agencies. This would enable them to engage in better long-term planning without always having to worry about where the money was coming from, he said.

During his speech to the house, Levi also said his department was working to consolidate all of the legistlation in the province dealing with children, and was studyuing daycare in the province and making it available to more people.

North Island 'Poor People' Up in Arms

Two Week Loss of Car Ferry Means Dollar Loss to Villages

By JEAN SORENSEN
Colonist Correspondent

ALERT BAY — Merchants in three north Island communities face the prospect of losing thousands of dollars in business when the provincial government cuts off ferry service for two weeks.

The provincial government has ordered the north Island's only car ferry in for refit early in March and replaced it with a vessel that carries only foot passengers.

Alert Bay merchant Ray Rosback said he stands to lose a substantial amount of dollars and called the action "another sign of the ignorance of the government."

The loss of the Island Princess which runs from Sointula, Alert Bay, Port McNeill to Kelsey Bay will mean merchants have no way of getting trucked supplies to their store shelves.

Rosback said that the ferry service loss will not only mean a cutback in the stores sales, but he will have to still maintain wages to truck drivers who haul goods from Vancouver.

He estimates his loss will be several thousand dollars.

"But, it is going to effect everyone."

Rosback said the trucks running twice a week from Vancouver bring in food, clothing, hardware and building supplies. Other island merchants have come to depend on Vancouver Island based suppliers.

Rosback said several years ago when the Island Princess was called up for refit, he hired seine boats to meet the trucks on the Vancouver Island shore. Trucks were routed through a 150-mile logging road that can only be used at night. Workers loaded goods from the trucks to the boats and brought them across to Cormorant Island.

"The cost was considerable," he said.

Rosback said that unless the government comes up with a car ferry, he will be ordering "floatable goods only."

The ferry shut-down will also mean a halt to dairy trucks that run twice a week from Port McNeill to Cormorant Island.

Owner Bill Granoukos, who operates the North Island's only milk service, said he supplies all the milk and dairy products Cormorant Island uses.

Granoukos said he will not be cutting back on staff during the two week period and the company will bear the losses of trucker's wages.

He said during the 11 years the milk company has been operating it has built up "quite an investment" on Cormorant Island and will sustain a considerable loss.

"The government's ferry fleet gets bigger and bigger each year," Granoukos said. "Surely, it should be able to give us an automobile ferry."

Granoukos said he had heard the provincial government had been asked for a barge for vehicles.

'Illegal Act' Charges Supported

By NANCY BROWN
Colonist Reporter

Some 1,100 loggers were back on the job Friday in the Port Alberni area, but the owner-operators of equipment who had been the subject of the four-day work-stoppage stayed away from the job.

The IWA members from three divisions of MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. at Cameron, Franklin and Sproat Lake had been accused Thursday in the Legislature of serious transgressions of the law after they had protested against having to work with non-union workers in the woods.

Statements made in the Legislature by Allan Williams, Liberal MLA from West Vancouver-Howe Sound, were backed up Friday by representatives of independent owner-operators and contractors.

A telegram was sent to Premier Barrett requesting government intervention in the dispute by representatives of the Truck Loggers Association, the Western Independent Log Haulers Association and the Upper Island Truck and Equipment Owners Association.

It said that the owner-operators are being denied the right of access to public lands — a right guaranteed under public policy.

The Forestry Act guarantees that holders of Tree Farm Licences may contract out at least 30 per cent of the land they control to small operators.

Earl Foxcroft, president of the Port Alberni local of the IWA said Friday that all union members are back on the job today following agreement Thursday that all operators working in the woods would join the union.

He said the Truck Loggers Association has advised its members to stay off the job and most indepentent operators have obeyed.

DRUG FORUM TODAY

DUNCAN—The seminar on drug abuse, sponsored by the Cowichan Valley Drug Information Association and the Cowichan School Board adult education division, will begin 9 a.m. today at Cowichan senior high school cafeteria.

There will be panel discussions and open forums. Rehabilitation Minister Norman Levi will speak at lunch at the Eagles Hall. The seminar is open to the public. It will close with a summary given by Duncan alderman Ken Paskin at about 4:15 p.m.

Battle Is Finished Says IWA Chief

By RODNEY WADE
Colonist Correspondent

PORT ALBERNI — As far as the International Woodworkers of America, local 1-85 are concerned the battle is over.

Rival union, the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada had attempted to gain certification in the Somass Mill in Port Alberni. But Wednesday they withdrew their application from the department of labor.

Ten days ago, IWA local President Earl Foxcroft had predicted this would happen, saying that the PPWC did not have anywhere near the required 50 per cent plus one of the membership signed up.

Earlier this week, as the Feb. 15 deadline for filing applications approached the PPWC announced that they would not be applying to the department of labor for certification within the Alberni Plywood Division. Their reason was that they had run out of time.

Foxcroft denied that this was true. He stated that the PPWC had had plenty of time but simply had not been successful in their membership drive.

The Canadian union had made a concerted effort to sign up members even bringing in the national president Fred Mullen to help during critical periods.

In the early stages Mullen had exuded such confidence that many observers felt the IWA would be in grave danger of losing on a vote.

Contrary to expectations, Mullen did not make Canadianism a major item in his campaign. Rather he stressed the advantages of local autonomy, of smaller locals and of the deficiencies in the IWA structure and constitution. In the PPWC scheme of things the individual worker was said to have greater power to control the actions of the executive. The latter would, at local level be volunteers.

This contrasted with the IWA local officers who are trained and paid by the union.

Thursday, the day of the deadline the PPWC made a surprise move. They re-applied for certification for the Somass Mill even though they had withdrawn the earlier application concerning the same plant.

This would indicate that the PPWC confidently considers it has the necessary majority of 50 per cent plus one.

Foxcroft however does not think so.

"To re-apply in this way is facetious. They are setting worker against worker and plant against plant. In my opinion it is merely an attempt to help their campaign in Ladysmith and Duncan. As far as I'm concerned it's all over."

He added that it was now time for the union local to evaluate what had happened, what had been learned and how needed improvements that may exist could be dealt with.

Environment Check Goes Sky High

By DON GAIN
Colonist Reporter

A team is being assembled in Victoria to interpret photos — taken by a U.S. satellite and high-flying Canadian aircraft — which eventually will be used as a continuing check on what we are doing to our environment.

Some of the pictures are being taken from a height of 600 miles by the Earth Resources Technology Sattelite (ERTS), launched last May by the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The others are being taken by two DC3s, a CF-100 and a Flacon fan jet, all based in Ottawa, from a height of 30,000 to 40,000 feet.

The satellite photographs almost every part of Canada every 18 days (it took 35 years to photograph it once using standard aerial photographic techniques).

These pictures, with those from the specially equipped Canadian government aircraft, will provide a history of what's going on with our forests, wild life, agriculture, hydrology and ecology.

He said in an interview this week that an advertisement in Victoria and Vancouver newspapers has drawn about 50 replies from "a broad range of people, some with very little education and no experience to some highly qualified people."

He said the project, which is being financed under the winter works program, will require six fulltime people or a larger number of parttime people

The advertisement calls for applicants with some training or experience in aerial photo interpretation or in an environment-related field such as forestry, hydrology, ecology, agriculture or wild life studies.

Their work will be the interpretation of the "imagery" from the satellite and the aircraft for presentation to possible users in B.C.

The program is under the zegis of the Canada Centre for Remote Sensing which was formed in Ottawa in 1970 as part of the department of energy, mines and resources.

Its purpose is to make available to Canadian users the new technology in remote sensing.

It will now be possible to see changes in ice cover in bodies of water, to detect and follow diseases in agriculture and forest crops, to chart pollutants in lakes and oceans, including oil slicks and phosphates in detergents and to record changes in permafrost distribution and wildlife habits as a result of mineral exploration.

In the satellite photographs, said Gower, "features larger than 200 feet can be distinguished and scientists are using the pictures for crop and forest inventories and large-scale pollution and water circulation studies."

Possible uses for these pictures in B.C. will be investigated by the team he now is setting up.

The team will get started as soon as possible, Gower said.

He said one use the photographs can be put to is to provide information for the Canada land inventory office.

Bill's Happiness Like Manure 'You Have to Spread It Around'

By CLAUDE ADAMS
Colonist Reporter

"An altruist," says Bill Scott, 75, among his carbines and bits of old Victoriana, "is a man who knows that happiness is like manure; you have to spread it around."

The same applies to history in the mind of Vancouver Island's champion attention-getter and eccentric, and he is determined that the human interest of days gone by must be preserved and spread like rich fertilizer.

An old gun is more than an old gun. It is a piece of drama. Who fired it and why? Who caught the bullet? Was it an act of vengeance, self-defence, jealousy?

And that hollow metal head from Nepal, confiscated by Vancouver police in a drug raid? Who filled it with hashish? What was the background of the trafficker?

In a renovated 65-year-old building on Johnson, Scott has surrounded himself with relics. The days of running for mayor and nagging the powers-that-be have been pushed aside. The so-called lighthouse philosopher has become a history freak.

"All these wonderful things have a history behind them," he pronounces, scanning the second-floor room above his pawn shop, "and we have seen so many good works of art auctioned off without knowing anything about their backgrounds."

He picks up his prize: A double-barrelled Rigby elephant gun that belonged to Colonel By, founder of Ottawa. He fondles an ivory-handled hara-kiri knife and wonders: "Whose guts did that take out?"

And the mysterious .32 automatic handgun, a contemporary piece that's supposed to have been intended for the assassination of an attorney-general. Scott won't elaborate.

The most fascinating item is a 250-year-old English cane gun. You screw off the wooden stock and use the barrel and firing piece for a cane to "stroll down the Strand" until you meet somebody whose

Scott cackles with delight. You know he's in his element. He proudly shows you photographs of his days among the Chinese, when he accompanied authorities on their opium-burning sprees. "That's me, in the corner, next to the chimney!"

Danger Lost

He snears at a modern rifle on the wall, with telescopic sights attached, and says that hunting has lost its danger and romance.

Of course, there's a commercial angle to all this. On March 1, Scott is holding an auction to sell some of the articles. But he insists that the antiques remain in the country, so American collectors be warned.

"Mainly I want to create some communication," he says, grasping your arm and squeezing. "Antiques have come and gone for years and nobody knows anything about them.

Not Dollars

Pawnbroking has a big place in Scott's historical sweep. It is 3,000 years old and was passed on from the Chinese to the Greeks and Romans. America owes it discovery to a pawnbroker.

Queen Isabella could not have sold her jewels to finance Columbus in 1492 if it hadn't been for a pawnbroker, he explains.

Help Winos

A word about Scott's colorful Old Town Auctioneers building: he bought it last year and spent a small fortune brushing out the cobwebs, painting the walls and hammering it into shape.

He wants Victorians to spare a thought for the Old Town as they go about recklessly developing the city.

"The government has 'opportunity' programs for all kinds of people, and I thought of starting an Opportunities for Winos. Take the winos off the streets, get some grapes from the Okanagan Valley, hire a couple of Italian technicians to mash the grapes with their feet, and just let the winos at it."

In the small back yard, Scott is thinking of putting up a mall and walkway. It overlooks the former site of a creek that divided Chinatown from the western part of the city.

UVic Girls Slip Notch

The competition finishes today with all teams playing two matches and the top two teams meeting in the championship final.

UVic, in second place prior to Friday's play, defeated Lethbridge, 15-11, 15-5, and lost to Calgary, 10-15, 8-15, and UBC, 8-15, 15-3, 10-15.

B.C. To Run Welfare For Region

By BARBARA McLINTOCK
Colonist Legislative Staff

All welfare and children's services in the Capital Region will be taken over by the provincial government, probably by August, Rehabilitation Minister Norman Levi announced Friday.

Levi

Levi told the Legislature that the move would be a pilot project, and would likely be extended to other areas of the province later, eventually embracing the whole of B.C.

The immediate takeover in the Capital Region would be by the province, he said, but ultimately the services would be turned over to the Capital Regional Board to administer.

The changeover to regional control might take place within two to three years, he suggested, as soon as the region has the staff and expertise to provide high-quality services.

The main agencies to be taken into provincial control are the Victoria city social services department, the Saanich municipal social services department, and the Family and Children's Service, a private, non-profit agency serving most of the region now.

Welfare services for the rest of the Capital Region are already mainly run by the provincial government, through offices in Esquimalt, Langford, Sidney and Sooke.

Levi said the Capital Region had been chosen for the pilot project because it had, on its own, undertaken a study which recommended integration of welfare and children's services, either under the region, the province, or some newly-created body.

The study he referred to was one commissioned by the regional board and undertaken by the Community Council of Greater Victoria in late 1970 and early 1971. Although it originally was received with considerable enthusiasm in the Victoria area, no action was taken on it because of strong opposition from the Family and Chil-

Banker's Daughter Abducted

FREEPORT (AP) — Bahamian police said Friday two men have kidnapped a Canadian banker's four-year-old daughter and demanded a $250,000 ransom.

Andrea Spencer was taken Thursday night by two masked men armed with pistols who burst into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Spencer and demanded the money, police said.

Authorities said the Spencer child was dressed in pyjamas and had just finished her afternoon nap when the armed men seized her.

On Jan. 14, 1972, an armed man forced his way into the Spencer home in Lucaya and ordered Spencer to get him $300,000 from the bank's vault.

Strachan Sees Lower Rates

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislative Staff

British Columbia's proposed new government-run auto insurance plan scheduled to begin operation March 1, 1974, will be universal, non-profit and a monopoly.

It will function under the umbrella of a new crown corporation, to be known as the Insurance Corporation of British Columbia, which will enable the government to also enter the general insurance field but in this case on a profit-making basis in competition with private firms.

Highways Minister Robert Strachan introduced legislation setting up the ICBC and an accompanying Automobile Insurance Act, establishing the car insurance plan, in the house Friday. The ICBC Act gives the government the power to take over any insurance company or enter joint operations in the field.

Strachan

Private Firms

The government plan virtually wipes out the $135 million car insurance business in this province although Strachan later told a news conference licenced corporations and agents have until Oct. 1 to make application to act as agents for the B.C. scheme.

Asked whether private car insurance firms would receive any compensation from the government, Strachan replied: "We will meet with them and discuss the transition period. But they (the industry) have been telling us for years and years they've been losing money. We're doing them a favor. They should be paying us."

The legislation contains no premium rates under the proposed new plan. Strachan told reporters "massive computerization" is required to come up with a rate structure because it will be tied to licence plate sales and individual driving records as well as to age, risk category and geographic location.

Few Months

But the minister predicted rates in all driver categories will be "generally" lower when the plan comes into effect next year and promised to give some "ballpark figures" to the Legislature when the bills are being considered in committee later in the current session.

The cabinet will determine each specific class of general insurance which the crown corporation will undertake.

Insurers Shaken, Alarmed

Expressions of alarm and shock came from both the insurance industry and political opponents in the wake of Friday's announcement that the Barrett government intends to set up Canada's biggest insurance corporation.

Legislation to put the government into the car insurance field had been expected, but the move into general insurance as well came as a surprise and aroused some of the strongest criticism.

Ian Rendle, manager of Gardner Agencies Ltd., in Victoria, summed up the feelings of many in the industry when he said he had several views of the proposed legislation, and all of them were of alarm.

Rendle said he was disturbed by the part of the legislation which gives the cabinet the power to order organizations which receives provincial grants or loans—such as school boards, hospital boards, municipalities and universities among others — to

The Heroin Trail

Deaths from heroin addiction are only a part of the tragedy that heroin has brought to our society. They include addicts whose lives have been wrecked. They include those who, triggered by heroin usage, have experimented disastrously with other dangerous drugs. They include those who have been assaulted or robbed by addicts who stole to pay for their habits. And, finally, the victims also include the parents and relatives of the addicts. To all this must be added other costs, necessary ones, for treatment, prevention and enforcement — costs that night be applied to other social problems if heroin did not exist.

It was with these facts in mind that Newsday, a New York-area newspaper, decided more than a year ago to make a major commitment to telling the full story of heroin, the drug that seemed to be the most merciless of all in the punishment it inflicted upon its users.

The full story, Newsday decided, should focus not only on the victims of heroin but on those who had profited by it. It is generally known that millions of dollars are made each year by heroin profiteers, but little information has been made public about specific individuals, systems or methods that were operating for financial gain to bring heroin to its ultimate victims.

"Covering" heroin meant going to its source, principally the poppy fields of Turkey. It meant following its route to North America, principally through Europe and especially in France, where the morphine base derived from the opium poppy was converted into heroin in illegal laboratories.

The first three months for the three-man Newsday team were spent in Turkey. They lived in a rented house on the outskirts of Istanbul. Their investigations led them to the poppy fileds of Anatolia and the cafes of Sofia, Bulgaria, as well as to the nightclubs and restaurants of Istanbul.

The trio was followed on several occasions; they were threatened their phones were tapped; they found themselves on guard and suspicious of apparently normal actions by people who they didn't know.

In September, after driving through Europe along the route taken by narcotics smugglers, they set up a second base, in the seaside town of Lavandou, on the south coast of France near Marseilles.

In the meantime, a second team began forming to report out the heroin story in the United States, concentrating on New York and Washington, but also travelling as far as Mexico, Miami and Montreal in search of the American connection.

The overseas group returned Dec. 15.

The story on "The Heroin Trail" will be told as a continuous narrative, starting in the Sunday Colonist. It is organized along the route that the drug takes from the poppy fileds of Afyon province in Turkey to the arms of the addict in American cities. Each day's story will focus on a specific aspect of the business of heroin.
